After Stalin— The New Look

What is the plan of the new rulers of Russia—the men who took over when Stalin died?

What is the "New Look" in Soviet relationships which correspondents in all capitals, including Moscow itself, are reporting... the less tense atmosphere... the more friendly attitude... the more easily approached officials... what does it mean?

Chester Bowles, former ambassador to India and a specialist in Asian affairs, believes he knows. It doesn't mean war... yet. But it most emphatically does not mean peace.

It is a new type aggression which has replaced Stalin's armed force. Says Bowles, in a discussion of it:

"The threat which faces America today goes far beyond the growing nuclear power of Russia, super-imposed on the greatest orthodox military establishment in history. There is also the danger that shrewd Soviet tactics... will gradually cut us off from our friends and potential friends."

Since Stalin

"Since Stalin's death in 1953, the Soviet Union has moved steadily to capture the diplomatic offensive and to divide the free world," Bowles continued. "Day by day it is striving to convince millions of people in Europe, Asia, and South America that the Communist nations are the true advocates of peace, and that America, towards whom the world looked with such fervent hopes in 1945, is a power-hungry aggressor."

"That this incredibly distorted picture is now widely accepted is a measure of the problem which we face..."

Let us reduce this disturbingly true summary of the new "diplomatic aggression" to a few illustrations.

A few months ago a Soviet delegation arrived on a cultural mission to Indonesia. There were 17 members. When they stepped off their aircraft in Djakarta, capital of the new Asian Republic, each of the 17 spoke fluent Indonesian... it was a master stroke of great simplicity, shrewdly prepared. The Indonesian people were thrilled. They felt a glow of friendship toward the visitors.

During the Stalin regime students in India, seeking to visit the Soviet embassy in New Delhi, were met by Tommy gun-carrying guards.

Today, every class which graduates from the equivalent of our high school has been invited to the Soviet embassy and entertained by Hindu-speaking officials.

Throughout all south-east Asia the Soviet official: who deal with the people speak their language... and they pour out the lie that we, the United States, are a power-hungry aggressor.

The "New Look" is a shrewdly designed diplomacy.

'New Look'

The "New Look" is, on the surface, more "friendly," more intimate. As we have dropped the Point Four program, which was the best thing we did in areas where it had sincere administration, the Soviets have picked it up. We have given generously... but too often our aid has had the obvious political tag—and some congressmen have demanded gratitude. The Soviets are beginning to sell tractors... at low prices... or for barter... and they ask no "gratitude."

We have not even gone through with the Nelson Rockefeller proposal to organize an International Finance Corporation, affiliated with the World Bank, which could grant loans with lower interest rate and a less rigid repayment formula... These are a few illustrations of the "New Look."

We are doing better in Europe because people there, living close to communism and making everywhere a good economic comeback, are more willing to defend freedom and independence.

But in Asia, Africa and South America there are the necessary ingredients for Communist success—middle-class, frustrated intellectuals—and a poverty-stricken, miserable people who are in revolt.

The Russians know this. That, in fact, is the meaning of their "New Look." It is "diplomatic aggression."

Phenix City's Ferrell and Fuller Charged With Patterson's Slaying

DR. SAM SHEPPARD IN WITNESS CHAIR
Osteopath Tells His Side In Wife-Slaying Trial

Never Talked Divorce, Sheppard Tells Jurors

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 9 (AP)—Handsome, boyish Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard testified firmly today that he had never discussed divorce or had any serious disagreement with his pretty, pregnant wife, whom he is accused of slaying after quarrels about his love affairs and other women.

The 30-year-old osteopath testified at his murder trial as his own star witness in the climax of a defense effort to save him from the electric chair.

Speaking in a slow, high-pitched voice he flatly contradicted the testimony of a series of prosecution witnesses.

He denied he had suggested divorce to his wife, Marilyn, 31, who was bludgeoned to death in her bed last July 4, denied he had ever beaten his 7-year-old son, Samuel Jr. (Chip), in an uncontrollable rage and denied that he ever told a friend that head injuries were the easiest to feign.

Sheppard sat at ease in the witness box with his hands clasped before him. He seemed almost over-anxious to tell his side of the story at least to the seven-man, five-woman jury which will decide his fate.

Asked directly by Chief Defense Attorney William J. Corrigan if there had ever been any talk of divorce between himself and his blonde wife, Sheppard replied:

"No sir, there wasn't..."

Christian Scientists Don't Spurn Medical Aid Against 'Judgment'

PART VI
This is the second part of the answer to the question, "What Is a Christian Scientist?" in a series of informative articles on the role of religion in today's world, written for The Constitution by leading authorities of the various faiths and denominations. Later articles will discuss Baptists, Episcopalians and Seventh-Day Adventists.

Lecturer and Manager of the Committee on Publications of the Christian Science Church

Do Christian Scientists refuse medical attention when their own children are sick?

Christian Scientists love their children as deeply as other parents. When their children are ill, they want them to have the most effective and reliable help. They employ the method of Christian Science—prayer, or spiritual understanding—fearlessly and with complete confidence, because they have reason to know that Christian Science is efficacious. Gov.-elect Griffin announced Thursday the appointment of 60 of his political supporters to become Democratic executive committeemen from the state-at-large.

High School Student Killed 4 Hurt at Rail Crossing Here

A Sylvan High School student was killed and four other persons injured late Thursday when an automobile in which three high school students were reported fleeing from another car pulled in front of a passenger train on the McDaniel street (SW) crossing, police said.

Nelson H. (Buddy) McGee, 16, of 436 Lynnhaven Dr., SW, was instantly killed. Patrolmen C. L. Queen and E. A. Samples said two other passengers in the car were only slightly injured, although both were thrown out of the demolished car and one, a girl, rolled a distance of 75 feet.

They were listed as Sybil Cassandra Leonard, 15, of 776 Brookline St., SW, who received abrasions of the hands, back and legs, and Roy Alvin Pickett, 16, of 1104 Hobson St., SW, who suffered bruises. Both were treated at Grady Hospital.

Two Negro pedestrians were injured when struck by flying parts of the auto. They were Thurmond Thomas, 18, of 185 Carter St., SW, who received a compound fracture of the left leg, and Louise Grant, 22, of 783 Humphries St., SE, treated at Grady for cuts and bruises.

Police said the high school students had attended a dance at Sylvan High School. After the dance, they drove the dead youth's sister, Patsy McGee, home and Buddy McGee was taking the Leonard girl and Pickett home.

The two were quoted as saying another car began following them and they had attempted to get away from it. They told police when they reached the railroad tracks, they heard noises that sounded like pistol shots.

Do Christian Scientists call in a doctor at childbirth?

Yes, The Christian Scientist makes sure that someone who possesses the necessary skills is present at childbirth. The Christian Scientist does not presume to do what he is neither trained nor licensed to do.

Have not Christian Scientists died because they refused medical attention, or relied enforced to rely on Christian Science against what he may regard as his own good judgment.) Christian Scientists in many schools and colleges ask for and receive exemption from regulations requiring medical means—yet their health is as good as that of the rest of the student body, and is often better.

The Christian Scientist knows that he takes good care of his children in one particular way: He prays earnestly for himself and his children every day. He prays not only for their health, but for their spiritual progress.

Patterson was killed on a Friday night and the following Sunday the man he had been nominated to succeed, Atty.-Gen. S.

Lodge Blasts Malik's 'False' Arguments

Compiled From Wire Services

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec.

9—United States Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. denounced Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik in the United Nations today for using false arguments in defending Red China's imprisonment of 11 American airmen as spies.

He accused Malik of making misstatements, of twisting U.S. statements and of trying to mislead fellow delegates in parroting Chinese Red charges that the airmen were spies even though they wore uniforms when captured.

Attacking statements by Malik that there had been "contradictions" in American statements about the airmen, Lodge said:

"If a visitor from Mars came here and heard such citations of 'contradictions,' he would wonder if the individual's normal reasoning faculties were functioning," Lodge said.

Lodge made his attack on Malik

Fair and Colder Predicted Here

Favorable Christmas shopping weather is the promise of the weatherman for the Atlanta area Friday and Saturday. It will be nippy enough to stay in keeping with the season, he said.

Official forecast is fair and slightly colder Friday with increasing cloudiness and warmer Saturday. Extremes will range between 32 and 48 Friday and between 32 and 58 Saturday, he predicted. Thursday's range was 39 and 56.

BECAME ENEMIES

Ferrell was appointed solicitor in 1948 on Albert Patterson's recommendation, but later they became political enemies.

A week after the murder, Acting Atty.-Gen. Bernard Sykes replaced Garrett as chief investigator under orders of Alabama Gov. Gordon Persons. Sykes removed Ferrell from the investigation.

Ferrell told reporters he knew he was a suspect, but he denied any knowledge of the slaying.

Fuller, while he was taking part in the investigation, talked freely with newsmen. He often gave tips about new "suspects" being rounded up. Most every day he told of a "new mystery witness" being sought in the case.

HELPED NEWSMEN

Fuller, who was one of the leading officials in the early gambling raids after the Patterson murder, took Jack Nelson, Constitution reporter, on a guided tour of the area around the Coulter Building where Patterson was shot to death.

The deputy said he thought Patterson must have walked down the steps from his law office and entered the alley adjoining the building where he was shot.

Fuller pointed out the routes by which he said the killer might have escaped.

Pope Is So Ill Doctors Can't Make Tests

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 9 (AP)—

Pope Pius XII's doctors said tonight the 78-year-old Pontiff still is so ill they have been unable to make vital tests to determine his ailment.

A team of four doctors examined the Pope for two hours and said he showed marked improvement since his near fatal collapse one week ago.

However, they said they do not know what is causing his illness and his condition still is such that tests cannot be made to find out what was wrong.

They made it clear they cannot cure the Pope until they know what is causing his nausea, hiccupping, abdominal pains, fever, coughing and fluctuating pulse.

The doctors said the health of the Pope has "markedly improved."

Fair, Colder

Fair and slightly colder Friday. Saturday, increasing cloudiness and warmer. Extremes expected Friday, 32-48; Saturday, 32-58. Thursday's were 39-56.

3rd Person Is Indicted; Not Named

Judge Indicates January Trials

By JACK NELSON

Constitution Staff Writer

PHENIX CITY, Ala., Dec. 9—Suspended Sol. Arch B. Ferrell and former chief deputy sheriff Albert Fuller were charged with first degree murder here Thursday in the June 18 slaying of Albert L. Patterson.

Both men, chief investigators in the early phase of the murder case, were arrested after being accused in Russell County grand jury indictments of "unlawfully and with malice aforethought" killing Patterson "by shooting him with a gun or pistol."

Patterson was shot four times outside his law office here less than three weeks after winning nomination as Alabama's attorney general.

ACCESSORY TO CRIME

A third indictment was returned in the case, but the accused had not been arrested late Thursday night. An official source said the indictment charged the accused with being an accessory after the fact.

The grand jury report at 2:30 p.m. said there were "several" indictments. Officials refused to specify the number.

Patterson was murdered three days before he was scheduled to testify before a grand jury investigating vote fraud in Jefferson County. The jury later indicted Ferrell, Alabama Atty. Gen. S. Garrett, and Lamar Reid, a Birmingham attorney, on vote fraud charges.

A telephone call that was reported made by Ferrell to Garrett near the time of the shooting was investigated early in the murder case. Ferrell reportedly placed the call from his courthouse office to Garrett in a Birmingham hotel where the attorney general was entertaining political friends.

GUARDED AT FLAT

Fuller, 35, was arrested at 2:55 p.m. and placed under heavy guard at his garage apartment where he is recovering from back injuries. A doctor advised against his immediate removal to jail.

Ferrell, 37, who was appointed solicitor in 1948 on Albert Patterson's recommendation, was arrested at his house at 4:15 p.m. Sheriff Lamar Murphy and state investigators Willie B. Painter and Claude Prier had been waiting at his house for 25 minutes when his car pulled into the driveway. He was booked in jail.

It was no secret here that Ferrell and Fuller were chief suspects in the case.

Ferrell was relieved of any connection with the investigation of the murder a week after the killing.

Fuller, who quit as chief deputy when Ralph Matthews Jr. resigned as sheriff four months ago, had been questioned several times by state officials investigating the murder case. Several weeks ago bodies of two men shot

Atlanta To Evacuate 80,000 Pupils in Test

By LEE FUHRMAN

Between 80,000 and 90,000 school children will be evacuated from the city next March in Atlanta's first mass evacuation test, Elliott R. Jackson, area Civil Defense director, said Thursday night.

Jackson disclosed the plans at a quarterly meeting of the organization's community services group, including school authorities, block wardens and PTA members. William C. Sturgeon, Civil Defense director in Mobile, Ala., was principal speaker.

Sturgeon directed "Operation Scat" in Mobile last June 14, in which 480 blocks of the city was evacuated in 23 minutes. He showed a film of the various evacuation procedures. Jackson said many of these procedures will be incorporated in the Atlanta test.

Jackson said 10,000 adults will participate in the test, for which plans are now being made. He added that evacuating school children is the prime factor in a mass evacuation, and when children have been removed to safety all other elements seem to fall into place.

Besides Mobile, evacuation tests have been held in Spokane, Wash., Houston, Tex., Philadelphia, Pa., and Buffalo, N.Y., Jackson pointed out.

He said a meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at CD headquarters in the Municipal Auditorium for further discussion of the test.

VISITOR FROM NEW ZEALAND—LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9—The first live Kiwi bird ever sent to the United States—and one of the two of the rare birds now outside their native New Zealand—bustles himself after arriving last night by air en route to the San Diego Zoo. The bird, which is a national symbol in New Zealand, is so rare that many New Zealanders have never seen one. Kiwis cannot fly and don't even have wings. They are rapid runners, and use their long-taloned feet in combat. In family life Papa sits on the egg while Mama gathers food and protects the nest.

Dixon-Yates Foes Win Right To Dig Into Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Securities and Exchange Commission ruled today that opponents of the controversial Dixon-Yates contract have the right to dig into preliminary negotiations that led to the private power plan.

Joseph Volpe Jr., attorney for about 36 public power advocates, promptly seized on the decision as an opportunity to cross-examine at length Edgar H. Dixon, president of Middle South Utilities, Inc., one of the partners of the Dixon-Yates plan.

Volpe, over the objections of Dixon's attorney, questioned Dixon to obtain information "pertinent to the issues of interlocking relations and concentration of control" between Middle South and the Southern Co., the other partner in the deal.

Dixon retorted that aside from the Dixon-Yates project "we have no more connection with Southern Co. than with any other utility company." He made the statement when Volpe questioned him about negotiations last December and January.

The sometimes heated exchanges took place during the third day of an SEC hearing on Dixon-Yates plans to invest $5,500,000 in a subsidiary, Mississippi Valley Generating Co., which would build and operate a power plant at West Memphis, Ark.

Under the contract between Dixon-Yates and the Atomic Energy Commission, the proposed plant would feed power into the TVA.

Daniel James, Dixon's attorney, objected to Volpe's questions about early negotiations on grounds they were "irrelevant." But the five-man SEC upheld Volpe's contention that they were necessary to determine how the plan started, "how it moved along to its present posture and where it may be leading."

Volpe asked Dixon why he felt "impelled" to let the Southern Co. participate in the project. Dixon replied that Southern expressed a willingness to take a

Hall Sees 'Greater Unity' After M'Carthy's Ike Blast

Mundt Says He Advised Against Colleague's Attack

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The Republican national chairman asserted today that Sen. McCarthy's attack on President Eisenhower would be followed by "even greater unity" within the Republican Party.

Leonard W. Hall made this statement, he said, only after inquiring the views of "key Republican leaders around the country" and taking a "representative sample of Senate and House opinion."

Two of McCarthy's closest Republican Senate associates, Sen. Butler (Md.) and Sen. Mundt (SD), chided him.

Hall offered no judgment on the propriety or impropriety of McCarthy's words nor did he say explicitly what factor would cause the increase in Republican unity that he predicted.

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), who served as chairman of a special bipartisan six-man committee that recommended a condemnation of McCarthy's conduct that later was adopted 67 to 22 by the Senate, asserted "no genuine Republican" would leave the party on McCarthy's account.

"LUNATIC FRINGE"
"Some of the lunatic fringe might leave," Watkins added, "but they never really belonged to the party in the first place. They just established themselves wherever they think they can get the most attention."

Mundt, disclosing that he had tried to dissuade McCarthy from making what amounted to a charge of "softness" toward communism, said McCarthy had replied to these counsels:

"They're shooting at me from the other end of the avenue (meaning the White House). I've got to say something."

Making it clear that he disapproved of what McCarthy had then in fact said, Mundt went on:

"The dominant record of the President is emphatically anti-Communist, anti-Socialist and anti-big government. In foreign policy, anybody in this country who is not a Communist is anti-Russian. But there is a lot of room for honest disagreement as to the approach to this tricky problem."

"SHOULD NOT QUESTION"

"We should not question anyone's patriotism. We all want to free the Americans in Communist prisons and keep Red China out of the United Nations, but specific moves are a matter of trial and error."

"We shouldn't call each other bad names because we disagree."

Stoker Collects Pay Due Back in 1912

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 9 (AP)—C. J. Smith finally has been paid for a day's work he did back in 1912.

He received the $2.90 check with "no reductions" this week from the Kansas City Southern Railway Co. He reminded them a month ago he never had been paid for the day he worked as a fireman on one of their engines in Shreveport, La., 42 years ago.

"I just wanted to see what would happen," Smith explained.

Then he turned the check over to a Baton Rouge Christmas program for needy children.

Clark Hill Action Is Seen Near

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The four-year controversy over distribution of federal power from the Clark Hill project on the Savannah River may be brought to the fore again soon.

Officials of the Interior Department, including Undersecretary Clarence A. Davis and Asst. Sec.
Fred G. Aandahl, said they thought there would be action
"at some early time." They refused, however, to mention any specific dates.

POWER CONTROVERSY

The controversy is between the Georgia Power Co. and electric co-operatives represented by the Georgia Electric Membership
Corp. (GEMC). Georgia Power contends it should be sold Geo-gia's half-share of the output of the huge project. The other half goes to South Carolina, on the other side of the Savannah River.

The co-operatives have blocked such a sale, contending they, as a preference customer, are entitled to buy the power directly.

The controversy assumed significance for organized rural electric groups throughout the nation which are watching to see how the co-operative-private industry dispute is settled.

TO CAROLINA

Since mid-summer the entire 280,000 kilowatt capacity of the Clark Hill project has been going to South Carolina customers. An attempt to iron out the dispute within Georgia was reportedly delayed until after the Nov. 2 elections. It again faces complications in the controversy over the Dixon-Yates private power contract with the Atomic Energy Commission. Georgia Power is owned by the Southern Co., one of the two private utility firms.

Recently Davis held three conferences with representatives of the co-operatives and just last week President Harlee Branch
Jr. of Georgia Power conferred with Interior Secretary McKay, Davis and Aandahl.

GEORGIA SHARE

Early this year, Aandahl proposed that Georgia Power buy the Georgia share of the Clark Hill output under an agreement in which the company would guarantee to deliver to preference customers 80,000 kilowatts of power at all times.

Under his plan, which he says he still thinks is a good one, the government would enter into two contracts—with Georgia Power for the sale of the electricity and with the co-operatives guaranteeing them their allotted share of the 80,000 kilowatts at government-set rates.

The company and the coopera-tives then would contract for delivery. GEMC, the Interior officials noted, does not have or operate a delivery system of its own.

TURNED DOWN

The co-operatives turned down Aandahl's plan on the grounds if it had the power it would have no difficulty in working out a distribution agreement with the power company.

The company declined to enter the contracts and said it would protect rights of preference customers if sold the power.

Georgia Power has the only transmission lines to the Clark Hill plant on the Georgia side and the Eisenhower administration has announced a policy of not duplicating existing transmission facilities unless owners refused to accept equitable terms for handling federal power.

Plea to Bench To Shun Politics Is Unlikely Now

The Georgia Bar Assn. probably will not take action this week on a controversial resolution asking Georgia judges to keep out of politics.

Association President Jack Flynt of Griffin said Thursday he has received a letter from Charles J. Bloch of Macon, who introduced the resolution in November, asking that consideration of it be postponed until another meeting.

Bloch is in a Boston, Mass., hospital recovering from a recent operation, Flynt said. Flynt indicated Bloch wishes to be present when the resolution is debated.

The association's board of governors scheduled a special meeting Saturday to consider the resolution, which apparently grew out of a controversy over judges of the State Court of Appeals campaigning for the re-nomination of one of that court's members in the September primary.

MAY FORCE VOTE

Flynt said the resolution probably will be held over until the board meets again although, he said, board members who oppose it may be able to force it to a vote Saturday.

Only one other major measure is expected to be brought before the board Saturday, Flynt said.

This will be a request for the association to cosponsor a detailed study of municipal traffic courts, their operation and problems.

Flynt said the request was made by the University of Georgia's Institute for Continuing Education, which wants the lawyers' group and the Georgia Municipal Assn. to cooperate in the study.

STATEWIDE PROBLEM

Flynt said all Georgia municipalities—large and small—are confronted with the problem speeding up disposal of traffic cases.

Wednesday's session—opening day of the association's three-day midwinter meeting—was devoted to a detailed study of 1954 federal tax laws. Some 250 lawyers attended.

They were drilled in the art of how to advise their clients so the clients will get the most out of their incomes and the U.S. government the least—and do it legally.

Here are some of the tips they were given:

1. In most cases, it's better to sell an annuity just before it matures instead of cashing it in with the insurance company. Profit from the sale is taxed as capital gains, while interest from the matured policy is taxed as ordinary income.

SELF-EMPLOYED

2. The government won't let self-employed persons put off paying the lion's share of their taxes until Jan. 15. New tax laws require them to estimate their annual income and pay a full one-fourth of the estimated tax each quarter instead of making only token payments the first three quarters and making up the balance in the fourth payment.

3. A taxpayer can now deduct medical expenses which exceed 3 per cent of his income, instead of 5 per cent, as provided by the old laws. But he can't count money spent for medicine and drugs as medical expenses until it exceeds 1 per cent of his total income. The first 1 per cent for medicine is not deductible.

20 Escape Death In Plane Crash

HATBORO, Pa., Dec. 9 (AP)—A Navy Super Constellation carrying 20 men crashed and caught fire today while landing at the Naval Air Station at nearby Johnsville. No one was hurt seriously, the Navy reported.

The station said the plane hit a rough spot on the rain-swept field and flipped over. A small fire was extinguished quickly.

Rev. Mill Is Ordained Priest

The Rev. W. Robert Mill, curate of All Saints' Episcopal Church, was ordained priest by the Rt. Rev. Randolph R. Claiborne Jr., bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta, in a service at the church Wednesday night.

Guest preacher for the ordination was the Rev. E. Lawrence

Carter, of Los Angeles. The Rev. Mr. Carter, who is chaplain to the Episcopal students at the University of California in Los Angeles, was chaplain to Episcopal students at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., when the Rev. Mr. Mill attended the college from 1947 to 1951.

Others who took part in the service were the Rev. Milton L. Wood Jr., rector of All Saints' Church, and the All Saints' choir, directed by Joseph Ragan. The ordination was followed by a reception in the church parish house.

In addition to his duties as curate of All Saints' Church, the Rev. Mr. Mill serves as chaplain to Episcopal students at Agnes Scott College, Georgia Tech and the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia.

NEW LEGISLATORS

From Private To Lt.-Col. Odom's Feat

Editor's Note: Between now and the opening of the General Assembly in January, The Constitution will introduce new legislators to Georgians through brief biographical sketches.

A man who rose from the rank of private to lieutenant-colonel during World War II will represent Camden County in the Georgia Legislature next term.

Rep-elect John D. Odom enlisted as a private in October 1940. Nine months later, he held the rank of master sergeant. Then he graduated from the Air Force Academy at Randolph Field, Tex., attended the commanding general's staff school, navigator and bombardier school, glider pilot school and several Air Force technical schools.

He was promoted to major and served in combat in the Aleutian Islands. He attended military government school and was assigned as executive officer to the commanding general of the Erlangen Occupation in Germany. After three years Odom was promoted to lieutenant colonel.

Odom was made vice president of the Painter Produce Co. at Jacksonville in 1948. A short time later, he founded his own brokerage company in Jacksonville. Then he moved to Kingsland and expanded the firm into a chain of department stores and mercantile routes.

Odom, who was born in Camden County Dec. 12, 1915, is president of the Camden Community Chest, vice president of the Lions Club, a member of the Methodist Church, the American Legion, and the VFW.

Protestant Ministers Form Agency for Aid Distributions

Atlanta's Protestant ministers, long bothered by problems of distributing aid to people in distress, have set up a social service department within the Atlanta Christian Council to solve those problems.

The department, which was established last month, serves as a "clearing house" through which ministers can check on whether a person who comes to them for aid is entitled to public or private welfare assistance, or whether he already has received aid from other churches.

RACKETEERS

Thus, the agency serves a double purpose—it helps prevent one person's receiving assistance from more than one source and, therefore, helps distribute welfare assistance among more of the people who need it.

The Rev. Lamar Clements, the young Baptist minister who administers the department, maintains a file on all welfare agencies and all Protestant churches in the city together with a list of the people who have applied for and received aid from these sources.

Now, when a person in distress comes to a church office, the minister can check with the Rev. Mr. Clements and know in a minute whether that person is entitled to aid from welfare agencies and whether he has received such aid, or whether other churches have aided him, and to what extent.

Until the department was established, ministers were an easy mark for the few unscrupulous racketeers who make a practice of "working" the churches.

SYSTEMS

Many ministers, like the Rev. Harrison McMains of First Christian Church and Dr. James P. Wesberry of Morningside Baptist Church, already had a system for providing hungry people with restaurant meals and groceries instead of money, and for giving rent money to the landlord in-

Then, too, most ministers do not have time to follow up such cases in distress.

Doctors To Discuss Augusta Hospital Plans Sunday

Representatives of Georgia medical societies will meet in a special session in Macon Sunday to consider proposed plans for operating the new Eugene Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta.

The meeting, the first special called session of the House of Delegates of the Medical Assn. of Georgia, will be closed to the press. The House of Delegates decides policy matters of the association.

The Fulton County Medical Society has instructed its delegates to disapprove plans for operating the Augusta hospital. Some members of the Fulton group said they felt present plans would form an opening wedge for practice of medicine by the state.

Dr. Rufus Payne, administrator of the new hospital, said principal aims of the institution were to serve primarily as a teaching facility, to provide skilled medical care to patients and promote medical research. Some of the services to be offered will not be available elsewhere in the South, he said, and it is essential that some patients be admitted who are able to pay.

The hospital was designed primarily for non-paying patients. The Fulton group's objections include one that paying patients will be billed by the hospital, instead of doctors who treat them.

The Macon meeting will be held at the Dempsey Hotel, starting at 12:30 p.m. Sunday. If time permits the 130 delegates also may take up two other matters.

The question of whether it is ethical for members of Medical Assn. of Georgia to practice in association with cultists in the field of medical care may be considered.

Also on the agenda, if time allows, is consideration of revisions in a type of health insurance approved by the association six years ago. The plan offers lower fees for patients with low incomes. The prepaid medical insurance for those in the lower income brackets was approved

Milk Board To Aid Advisers

The State Milk Control Board will pay the official expenses of a special 14-member advisory committee charged with assisting in the preparation of a new milk pricing formula for Georgia.

The board voted Thursday to reimburse the advisory group for travel expenses, following a conference between Chairman Charlie Duncan and State Auditor B. E. Thrasher.

Representing producers, distributors, retailers, consumers and the press, the advisory group will include W. A. Law, Millen; J. A. Shropshire, Cartersville; N. R. Bennett, Madison; Mose Cooper, Columbus; Frank Lindsey, Griffin; Phillip McGinty, Atlanta; J. C. Purcell and N. M. Penny, experiment stations; Dexter Gatehouse, Atlanta; Jeff Jones, Albany; Quimby Melton Jr., Griffin; Melvin E. Winters, Douglas; Mrs. J. L. McCord, Atlanta, and Durwood Mercer, Macon.

The board also voted Thursday to set up an election on whether to bring Hancock County under the Milk Control Act, and to hold its next meeting Jan. 10, the date for Governor Griffin's inauguration.

34,000 Use Up Jobless Benefits

By M. L. ST. JOHN

How about Georgia's jobless—should they be paid more money and for a longer period of time?

Thirty-four thousand Georgians have used up all their jobless benefits thus far this year, without getting jobs. These 34,000 Georgians cannot receive further unemployment payments until they find jobs and build up new credits.

Thirty-four thousand persons drew unemployment compensation for the full 20 weeks, and still found no work. That is one-third of the total number of Georgians who drew unemployment compensation for the first 11 months of 1954, the State Department of Labor said.

The Georgia job situation is more serious this year than it has been. For the first time, the state's industries and business firms aren't building up a surplus in their contributions to the fund. Here, therefore, the taxes on the firms have produced more revenue than the jobless men and women took out. Thus far this year the contributions and the withdrawals are running about equal, Labor Commissioner Ben T. Hulet said.

The same situation exists over the nation. That is seen by a story from Washington stating that the Eisenhower administration is urging states to boost the amount and duration of the unemployment compensation benefits. Secretary of Labor Mitchell urged the states to make payments for 26 weeks and to pay the jobless at least one-half of their regular salaries.

Georgia pays for 20 weeks at a maximum of $26. It pays one-half of a person's regular salary up to a wage of $52—but it doesn't go any higher than $26, regardless of the size of the higher salary. No state pays as much as Secretary Mitchell suggested. Georgia pays one of the highest compensations in the South.

During the many years that the contributions by firms exceeded the withdrawals by jobless, Georgia has built a tremendous surplus of funds. As of Nov. 30, 1954, this surplus totaled $135,755,208.73.

As the surplus mounted, Hulet got the state administrations and General Assembly to lower the taxes on business firms and increase the benefits to jobless. However, a move by labor last year to extend the number of weeks to 26 weeks failed to pass in the Legislature.

What about Georgia's jobless—will a move be made here to follow the Eisenhower administration's recommendations? Will the Legislature be asked to increase the weeks to 26 weeks again? Will it be asked to hike the payments higher than $26?

The answers to these questions will come first from the Labor Department Advisory Council. This group of 30 Georgians will meet to discuss the need for any additional legislation before the General Assembly convenes here in January. Labor, industry and the general public are represented on the council.

Labor can be expected to seek more benefits for the jobless. Management can be expected to oppose any increase if it means a higher tax.

The matter seems to rest on whether an increase can come from the $135,755,208 surplus without making this "cushion" too weak to hold future unemployment.

The High Price of Relief

Two years ago this Santa Claus month, Eddie Stanky sat in a hotel room in Mobile, Ala., and consumed the better part of six hours in elocution about the pitching staff of the St. Louis Cardinals. He was, he would have to confess, proprietor of the best bullpen in the major leagues, consisting chiefly of a couple of indefatigable coyotes named Rawhide Yuhas and Boots n' Saddle Brazie.

There was a magazine purpose behind this visit, aimed primarily at the youth on young Manager Stanky's team. Harvey Haddix, Wilmer Mizell, Stu Miller and Joe Presko comprised the best young material in the National League. They were the intended meat of the piece, but Stanky couldn't let the occasion pass without speaking at length on Yuhas and Brazie, neither young any longer, but both exceedingly effective.

Each had won 12 games the year before in relief. Brazie was on the fading side of his career, an old starter pasturing in the bullpen. Yuhas had come out of nowhere, if Rochester, N.Y., his base the previous season, will pardon the expression.

"I don't subscribe to the thought that relief pitchers can't have two good seasons in a row," Stanky said. "With our young fellows and our bullpen anchored like this, the Cardinals can't think in terms of anything but first place next season."

At the time, Yuhas had not been defeated since June 4. He still hasn't lost one since June, 1952. But neither has he won. He hasn't recovered yet from a sore arm. He pitched one big league inning in '53.

Brazie, as tough as a piece of pork skin, went ahead alone, but fell from 12-5 to 6-7, and without an able assistant the Cardinals fell with him. He was discarded at the age of 40 after the close of last season. Thus, what had been the best bullpen in the major leagues in 1952 was spent.

$50,000 Minimum for Jablonski

When the Cards turned over Ray Jablonski, Gerry Staley and a third party yet to be determined for Frank Smith of Cincinnati, this seemed to be a tremendous price to pay to get some relief. I doubt that anybody but the Gussie Busch combine would have paid it, but last season the Budweisers were so afflicted with untidy pitching jobs and late-inning knockouts that the mending had to begin in the relief pen.

Smith has been relatively as inconspicuous around the National League as his name would be on a roll call. To the Redlegs he has been a faithful servant with good seasons of 12-11 and 8-1 before his ordinary 5-7 in '54. He began strong last spring, but as the temperature went in one direction he went in the other. You can figure the wear and tear on Cincinnati relievers, though, with the statistic that reveals Art Fowler as the leading complete game artist with eight.

Smith is big, strong and 26. Still, he is only one. For the outlay of Jablonski and Staley, it would seem the Cards could have done better.

Take Jablonski. He was the National League all-star third baseman. He drove in 104 runs and for a long spell led the batting race. He isn't a brick wall at third base, but the Cardinal people spent many words defending his defensive work last spring. You'd price him at $50,000 minimum on the present market.

Wight, Robinson and Bradley for Lopat

Staley has been a puzzle. Something has been missing in his pitching makeup. Three seasons in succession he won 19, 17 and 18 games, each time had 20 in easy reach. A more affirmative Staley would have made potent contenders of the Cards.

Once I asked Stanky, "What's missing in Staley? What does he need to be great, to be a 20-winner?"

He couldn't find a concrete answer himself. Maybe it was one little pitch. Maybe it was frame of mind. But he thought he'd come through.

Now Staley's 31. Last year he failed badly, won only seven and erected a miserable 5.25 ERA. His attempts at relief went from bad to worse. Cincinnati obviously took him on the assumption that a course in the Eldorado Tabbetts College of Pitching will be his salvation.

This has the appearance of a lopsided deal, but the Cards had to meet the stiff price to get the Smith they wanted. You don't score these baseball deals on the values of the moment, however.

A few years ago, Brooklyn stormed Ebbets Field when the Dodgers traded away Dixie Walker and an assortment of heroes for Prescher Roe, Billy Cox and Gene Mauch. Walker was done in two seasons. Roe and Cox helped the Dodgers win pennants.

In '49, the Athletics got the best of the White Sox in a straight switch. Nellie Fox for Joe Tipton. The banjo-blasting Fox became a terror at Comiskey Park and won the All-Star game for the American League last summer. Tipton is a fine receiver, looked like a promising hitter, but has a habit of slaying broken up.

Then there was the real champion, when the Yankees allowed the White Sox to steal Aaron Robinson, Bill Wight and Fred Bradley in exchange for Eddie Lopat. Robinson had just come through his greatest seasons, Wight was no less than a brilliant prospect and Lopat was a pittance 11-16, 16-13, 13-13, 16-13 laborer.

The subsequent personal history of Charles D. Stengel and the World Series completes this case without further testimonial.

JACKETS HOLD LIGHT DRILLS; PLAINSMEN TO WORK TODAY

Georgia Tech players got their first look at the Arkansas version of the single wing Thursday during a light one-hour workout on Rose Bowl Field.

Meanwhile, Auburn, this area's other bowl representative, was preparing to resume drills Friday afternoon. The Plainsmen, who'll tangle with Baylor in the Gator Bowl Dec. 31, plan no heavy work for several days.

The Georgia Tech Bees reeled off Arkansas plays, as the Jacket varsity looked on in sweat clothes. Remainder of the Tech practice session was devoted to wind sprints. The Jackets will buckle down to serious business next week.

CHARLIE MADISON SELECTED FOR MVP HONOR AT GEORGIA

ATHENS, Dec. 9.—Senior halfback Charlie Madison has been voted the most valuable player on Georgia's 1954 football team in a poll conducted by The Red and Black, Georgia's student newspaper.

The stocky little Alabamian received 14 of a possible 30 votes cast by members of the sports staffs of The Red and Black, The Atlanta Constitution, The Atlanta Journal, The Athens Banner Herald, radio stations WGAU and WRFC of Athens and Georgia's coaching staff.

Madison's all-around grid abilities and his outstanding defensive play were tabbed as the main reasons for his selection as MVP.

Schmeling Denies Thomas Bout Fixed

Lie Detector Use Bared
By Magazine Charges

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Max Schmeling, one-time world heavyweight boxing champion, tonight called ridiculous a magazine story that he had won a fixed fight from Harry Thomas in New York on Dec. 14, 1937.

The charge was made in Sports Illustrated by Thomas, who also said that James D. Norris Jr., now president of the International Boxing Club, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's American manager, had conspired to fix the fight. Thomas listed Norris as his silent manager. His manager of record was Nate Lewis. Both Lewis and Jacobs now are dead.

Thomas said Jacobs told him before the Schmeling fight, "You can make more money on this one fight than you could make on that farm the rest of your life. You do business with us and you'll be taken care of."

Asked what was meant by "business," Thomas said Norris told him that "you'll have to take a dive, lose the fight by a knockout."

The magazine said Thomas voluntarily submitted to a lie detector test in Chicago concerning his statements. It was given "within the last 10 days," a magazine spokesman said, and was conducted by John E. Reid and associates, a firm which specializes in such tests.

Schmeling, speaking from his mink farm near Hamburg, Germany, said that Thomas' charges were ridiculous and "illogical." Don't forget that this bout took place in 1937, at a time when nobody in the United States could have been interested to bring me, the German, more into the spotlight than I already was after my knockout of Joe Louis.

In his most previous bout to date with Thomas, Schmeling

Berra Most Valuable In American League

Yankee Catcher Two-Time Winner, Noses Avila, Doby by Narrow Nod

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Larry (Yogi) Berra, the New York Yankees' slugging catcher, Thursday became the sixth two-time winner of the American League's most valuable player award.

In a close vote of a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Assn., Berra edged a pair of Cleveland Indians, outfielder Larry Doby and second baseman Bobby Avila.

The Yankee catcher also was named most valuable in his league in 1951. He is the first repeater since Boston's Ted Williams took the award in 1946 and 1949. Berra placed second to Al

Rosen of Cleveland in last year's voting.

Berra's first reaction was one of disbelief.

"What about those Cleveland fellows? They had some pretty good ones out there."

Since the baseball writers took over the most valuable selection in 1951, two players have been given the honor three times and three others before Berra have won it twice. The three-time winners were Jimmy Foxx in 1932, '33 and '35 and Joe DiMaggio in 1939, '41 and '47. The other repeaters were Hank Greenberg, 1935 and '46, Hal Newhouser, 1944, '45 and Williams.

Berra was placed first on seven of the 24 ballots and polled a total of 230 points. None of the 24 writers—three from each American League city, placed him lower than sixth on the list. Each voter lists 10 choices in order and points are scored 14 for each first place vote, nine for second and on down on an 8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis.

Packers Hope Height Offsets Inexperience

Nolan Has One Player Returning From '54

By JIMMY MANN
Constitution Sports Writer

MOULTRIE, Dec. 9—Coach Jim Nolan figures that a lot of Region 1-AA basketball teams will be getting even with his boys' club this season after the Packers shared the region title with Baker in 1954.

Fourteen out of 15 co-region champions left Moultrie and Nolan is working with one of the greenest crews in Packer history this time. Only one player—Ray Glow, senior forward who stands 6-4—has had varsity experience under Nolan.

A transfer from Tifton, 6-2 Jimmy Vickers has seen varsity basketball action but not the Nolan style. Rounding out the prospects for 1954-55 Nolan has Paul McComb (6-4), Porky Willis (5-10), Jerry Ziehl (5-9) and Bobby Bennett (5-5). McComb is a senior, Zeller a junior and Bennett and Willis are sophomores.

"These boys can play the game," says Nolan, the ex-Georgia Tech star, "but I'm afraid that the rest of the league will be too experienced."

Big Ten Region TV Plan Set

DETROIT, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Big Ten television committee today acted on the question of a 1955 regional TV football plan by drafting a recommendation for the joint meeting of faculty representatives and athletic directors.

There was no official announcement as to what the recommendation embodied. It will be placed before the joint group tomorrow morning.

Lobby talk was that the Big Ten had not made any radical change in its thinking on the issue—and this was taken to mean it will reaffirm its stand for regional TV as opposed to a national restricted policy enforced by the NCAA for the last four years.

The Pacific Coast Conference officially came out this week for regional football television, based on a team appearing once at home and once away during the season. This also is in the Big Ten's line of planning.

Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson today was empowered to set up a program of liability insurance for basketball and football officials.

and fast for us most of the time."

Height is the one thing in favor of the Packers. Glow, Vickers and McComb are over the six-foot mark, and they may prove that control of the ball can overcome lack of knowledge under fire. With the above six that will do most of the work for the Packers this season, there will be juniors Ronnie Schrieber, Floyd Faison, Dewey Vines and Jimmy Ricks, senior C. W. Anderson and sophs Lee Dunn, Jerry Tucker and Bucky Carlton around to lend their hands.

Last year when the Moultrie girls won the state Class AA championship, it was a comeback story unequalled in these parts.

Four of the starters on that team have left but Nolan thinks that he has another title contender. Betty Faye Piland and Margie Hester, both forwards and veterans of the state champs, will lead this year's group.

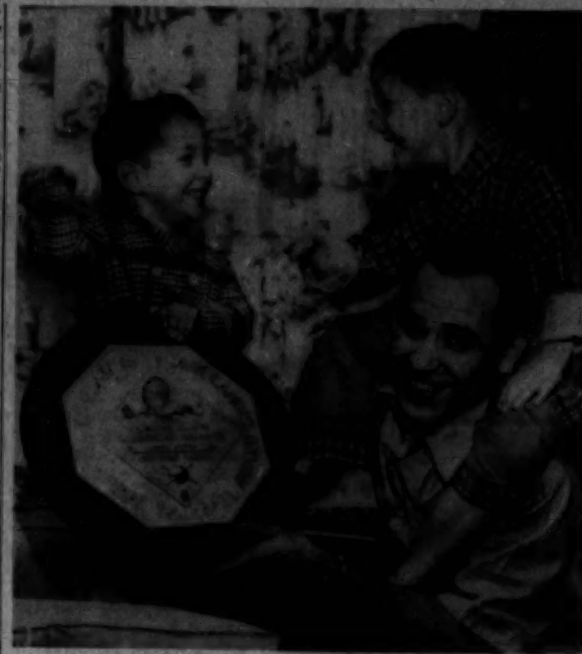

Alice Piland and Ouweda Georgia complete the forwards and Sherry Spooner, Mary Alice Gaines, Betty Blaick and Jan Brannon are the guards who will carry the Moultrie colors after another AA crown.

S'westers Get Formula For Victory From 'Spec'

Southwest High School, which has suffered more than its share of defeats during its short history, was given a success formula Thursday night.

Speaking at a banquet honoring the 1954 football Wolves at the school cafeteria, Georgia freshman coach Spec Landrum told some 125 players, students, faculty members and friends of the school that the key to football success is all-out support by the entire student body and participation in athletics by a large number of students.

"How to Get Out of the Losing Mood," was the subject of his talk, and he told the gathering that, in order to get out of the losing habit, "you've got to have the whole school behind you. It takes more than a team alone."

City athletic director Sid Scarborough also made a short talk. Included among the other dignitaries present were Principal and Mrs. Claude C. Willis Jr. and the coaching staff, including outgoing head mentor Carl Fletcher and new head coach Bob Greer.

Ex-Irish Footballers' Average Pay: $9,755

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 9 (AP)—A Notre Dame executive, criticizing a popular conception of a college football player as a "gorilla," said tonight a survey showed former Irish grid players to be highly successful in their post-college careers.

Father Edmund P. Joyce, Notre Dame's executive vice president, addressing a banquet honoring the 1954 Notre Dame football team, said a questionnaire of ex-Irish gridgers dating back to the turn of the century disclosed an average annual income of $9,755.

He lauded the inaugural head coaching season of 28-year-old Terry Brennan, who he said dispelled all worries about the results of giving "a boy a man's job."

Brennan succeeded the retired Frank Leahy and led the school to a record of nine victories and one defeat.

Father Joyce said the survey of former Irish gridgers brought returns from about 48 per cent or 250 ex-football players.

Forty-six per cent of them have jobs in the executive class and 28 per cent are in the professions. Only one-half of 1 per cent fall into the category of clerical worker or semi-skilled worker.

Father Joyce said the average annual income of $9,755 for the players responding to the questionnaire compared with an average he said ranged from $3,400 to $8,300 credited to college men generally in a recent magazine survey.

The Notre Dame survey also showed that 17 per cent of the former Irish athletes had held public office at one time or another, 16 per cent had received some sort of civic honor and 76 per cent belong to one or more fraternal, business, professional or civic organizations.

Construction Peak Hit With Synagogue Permit

Permit for construction of a combination synagogue and Sunday School building costing $1,200,000 Thursday pushed value of construction authorized in Atlanta thus far this year to $82,895,128, a figure $1,944,536 more than the all-time previous record set last year.

William R. Wofford, building inspector, said the new structure will be built at 600 Peachtree Battle Ave., NW, at the Northside drive intersection by Ahavath Achim Congregation.

Robert & Co. are architects and will design the structure along contemporary lines, a spokesman for the synagogue said. Bids for construction will be accepted as soon as architectural details are final.

The synagogue will serve all spiritual and educational requirements of the congregation which numbers approximately 6,000 members of the Conservative or Traditional branch of Judaism, a spokesman said.

It will include a sanctuary and auditorium, a daily chapel and office space with facilities for off-street parking.

Wofford also said he expects to issue a permit for approximately $700,000 for a new building for the Atlanta Historical Society before the year ends and that he anticipates several other large permits also will be asked before the year ends.

"We have established a record in value of construction authorized for the second consecutive year," Wofford said, "and it now looks as if 1955 might also be a banner year. We believe Atlanta will remain in the forefront of cities in its development and expansion."

New Bids Asked Dec. 20 on State Road Structure

The State Office Building Authority has called for new bids Dec. 20 for construction of an addition to the State Highway Building and for alterations to the existing structure.

This was disclosed Thursday after the Henry C. Beck Co. of Dallas, Tex., and Atlanta notified the authority it will not accept the contract for $2,121,000.

The Beck firm was low bidder at that figure when bids were opened several days ago but sought to withdraw its bid on grounds that a mistake had been made.

The authority Wednesday refused to allow the company to withdraw the bid and called on the firm to accept the contract and do the job.

Ousting Gillis May Prove Tough, Survey Finds

An Associated Press sampling of legislative opinion Thursday revealed that Gov.-elect Marvin Griffin will have strong support for his rural road building authority plan but may face trouble in trying to oust Jim Gillis as state highway chairman.

The wire service received replies from 33 members of the General Assembly to a questionnaire and these replies showed 90 per cent favoring the rural road plan.

Of the 33 replies, 17 said definitely they were in favor of replacing Gillis, according to the AP. Nine said they definitely favored retaining Gillis, and nine others gave "yes, but..." answers or were undecided.

6,000 To Sell Sunday Paper For Tots Santa Will Not See

Some 6,000 "Santa Claus salesmen" will comb Greater Atlanta Sunday morning, selling a special edition of The Atlanta Journal and Constitution to help make it possible for less privileged children here to have a real Christmas.

The annual sale, sponsored by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce and the two newspapers, is part of the city's annual Empty Stocking Fund campaign, a drive that dates back to 1931.

Mate Rips Fiery Clothes Off Wife

A tile setter was slightly injured Thursday while rescuing his wife whose clothing was on fire.

Mrs. Barbara Jean Akin, 21, of 357 Southland Ave., SE, told Grady Hospital attendants her house coat caught on fire in the home. Her husband, John I. Akin, 24, ripped her clothing off.

Mrs. Akin suffered burns of the back, hospital attendants said, while her husband was burned on the hands.

Proceeds of Sunday's paper sale will go to buy toys for some 12,000 unfortunate children in the Atlanta area. Without the sale these children would have no Christmas gifts, J. Stewart Wight, Atlanta Jaycee president, pointed out.

Toys are ordered in advance of the annual sale, and sponsors are hoping generous Atlantans will give enough to pay for all the toys needed.

Salesmen for the event are directed by Jaycees, but they include members of church and civic groups and other volunteers who want to help give less privileged Atlanta children a Christmas they will always remember.

Plans for the sale were mapped at a kick-off dinner for the Empty Stocking Fund here. Clifford Oxford, former Jaycee president and Young Man of the Year here in 1951, was principal speaker.

HIGH REVELRY

800 Youths Enjoy Dance Fiesta Here

By GENE BRITTON
More than 800 youngsters who participate in the city's recreation program kicked up their heels in high revelry Thursday night.

It was the fourth annual "Playtime Reveries" dance festival of the Parks and Recreation Dept. at Municipal Auditorium, putting a festive cap on the year's play and training at some 30 white playgrounds and 12 community centers.

The young Atlantans, trained in their routines for weeks, fought down the butterflies that were jitterbugging in their stomachs and marched onto the floor of the main auditorium with a repertoire of dances ranging from Italy's Sicilian Tarantella to California's Schottische and from a mountain square dance to an Oxford minuet.

COLORFUL SHOW
Youthful voices added the Yule touch to the show, most colorful and elaborate attempted by the department, with a series of Christmas carols and songs.

Pretty, green-and-white-clad majorettes from Home Park Playground and agile, bouncy tumblers added action to the program.

In a semi-circle around the stage area were exhibits of art and crafts completed by the boys and girls, and their parents as well, during the year. Thousands of Atlantans who filled the auditorium to see the show marched by the exhibit booths before the program.

BOSWELL NARRATOR
As the dancers and other entertainers came on the floor, Fred Boswell, assistant general manager of parks, narrated the significance of their acts. Frances Woodberry was director of the festival. Mrs. Mary Helen Manley and Morris Michael were dance instructors and Sylvia Kanter was choral director.

At the end of the show, the entire cast of 800-plus gave a rousing finale with "Jingle Bells."

Russia Threatens Buildup If West Ratifies Paris Pact

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Soviet Union warned the Western powers tonight that Russia and its East European Communist allies would increase their armed forces if West Germany is rearm.

In notes specifically aimed to prevent Western ratification of the Paris agreement to rearm West Germany, Russia told the United States, Britain and France the stepping up of Red armaments was to counterpose the growing armed forces of the aggressive states threatening the maintenance of peace.

Discussion of the German question, Russia said, will depend upon Western rejection of proposals to rearm Bonn.

Together with its notes to the

AF Returns Meteorite to Ala. Woman

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Hewlett Hodges got her meteorite back today.

The Air Force formally returned to the 32-year-old Sylacauga, Ala., housewife the nine-pound meteorite that crashed through the roof of her home Nov. 30 and struck her on the arm and hip.

Mrs. Hodges is hospitalized. Her attorney, Huel M. Love of Talladega, Ala., accepted the stone from Maj. Gen. Joe W. Kelly in the office of Rep. Kenneth A. Roberts (D-Ala.) and said it would be sold to the highest bidder.

Love said the Hodges have received "fantastic offers" for the meteorite, ranging up to $20,000. Kelly said the Air Force took temporary possession of the meteorite as part of its responsibility for "everything that falls from the sky."

Western powers the Soviet government delivered the text of a declaration adopted at last week's Moscow security conference of eight East European Communist states pledging an increase in armaments under a unified command—presumably Russia—to counter the prospective rearmament of West Germany.

The Soviet notes said rearming West Germany would make impossible the unification of the East and West zones of Germany.

They added that ratification of the London-Paris agreements "will bring about an intensification of the arms drive and will create new obstacles to achieving an agreement on the reduction of armaments."

"Such a policy leads to the transformation of Western Germany into a militarist state, with all the dangerous consequences thereof, not to mention the fact that the remilitarization of Western Germany will make impossible her reunification with the peace-loving (Eastern) German Democratic Republic into one state," the notes added.

Moscow said its stand on the German question is backed by the seven nations which signed the joint declaration after the Moscow conference. They are Poland, Czechoslovakia, East in the U.N. General Assembly in debate on a resolution under which the world organization would take responsibility for seeking the freedom of the 11 airmen and of all other U.N. military personnel still held by the Chinese Communists.

Lodge Blasts Malik's 'False' Arguments in U.N.

Malik in his earlier speech denounced as "shameful" and "jerry-built" the complaint by the United States and its Korean War allies against Red China's jailing of the 11 aviators.

He contended repeatedly that the airmen were spies and the U.N. has no business interfering in the processes of Peiping's justice.

Malik rejected claims by Lodge that the case of the 11 airmen was separate from that of two American civilians captured after the plane landed in Manchuria. Lodge said those two were not within the U.N. command. The Soviet delegate replied all 13 were bent on espionage assignments given by the American intelligence service.

"Individuals seized in China committing espionage can lay no claim to treatment as prisoners of war," Malik said. "These persons are subject to sanction according to legislation of the state where they are taken into custody. . . . The United States has foisted upon the General Assembly this shameful question. The Soviet Union takes exception to and will vote against the resolution."

Greece, Belgium, New Zealand,

Thailand, Turkey and Australia announced support of the resolution. Ahmed Shukairi, Syria, announced he would not vote to condemn Peiping but appealed for release of the prisoners.

Malik called attention to the fact that the assembly's Special Political Committee today began discussion of a Soviet complaint charging the United States with aggression against Red China. He said the United States had brought up the case of the prisoners to divert public attention from many aggressive U.S. acts against Red China.

Lodge spoke quickly in answer to Malik, saying Malik had not pointed out any contradictions and that Malik's attempts to lump the 13 men together were misleading. He repeated that the 11 airmen in one plane were under the U.N. Command and the other two in another plane were civilians.

Australian Delegate Sir Percy Spencer joined Lodge in attacking Malik personally. He said that two-thirds of a long speech the Soviet delegate had made had nothing at all to do with the prisoner issue.

He told Malik that the Soviet government spies and foments subversive activities "in every democratic country in the world."

Segregation Foe Pastor Ousted by 3rd Church

SHELLMAN, Dec. 9 (AP)—A Macon-born Baptist minister, sharply critical of segregation and ousted by a third church for expressing his views, plans to "shake the dust of Shellman from my feet."

Human Torch Death Probed In Crime Lab

Experts from the Georgia Crime Laboratory Thursday examined remnants of charred clothing in an effort to find a clue in the "human torch" death by a fire insurance salesman who was discovered Wednesday night with his clothing ablaze in a downtown hotel.

Detectives said this investigation into the bizarre death of John Wilson Simonton, 67, had produced nothing. They hoped a solution to the case would come from the laboratory tests.

Only physical evidence which Dets. W. S. Acree and M. A. Johnson found was a burned matchstick lying on a chest of drawers. Acree and Johnson said the side of the chest had been seared by flames and a hole was burned in a linoleum rug.

Simonton died early Thursday at Grady Hospital.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Ruby Petty of Atlanta; three daughters, Mrs. R. W. Griffin of Atlanta; Mrs. Frank L. Brittain of Baton Rouge, La.; and Mrs. A. E. Ross Jr. of Decatur; sister, Mrs. Charlie Knight of Snellville; and three brothers, C. W. and C. C. Simonton of Snellville and W. E. Simonton of Decatur.

Funeral arrangements will be announced.

The Rev. Henry A. Buchanan, 32, scratched the names of himself and his wife from rolls of the Shellman Baptist Church after the board of deacons asked for his resignation Sunday.

He penned "cast out" in the margin beside their names and said this southwest Georgia town of 1,000 should secede from the country if it does not intend to abide by the U.S. Supreme Court ruling against segregation in schools.

On July 20 the Friendship Church terminated the services of the Rev. Mr. Buchanan and two weeks later he resigned the Brooksville pastorate by request.

The normally mild mannered preacher turned on his Shellman congregation with this scorching rebuke Sunday after the Board of Deacons asked for his resignation: "You should withdraw from the Southern Baptist Convention," he said, "call yourselves a community club instead of a church and elect a president instead of a pastor."

Most of the 105 members present left the church while he was speaking. The congregation had voted 78 to 17 to accept the recommendation of the Board of Deacons.

The minister's wife, the former Martha Lee Gillis of Soperton, has supported his views and recently was asked to resign as a teacher in the Shellman school by the Randolph County Board of Education.

AUDIENCE FOR POLICE—A group of youngsters watch with mixed emotions as Ptl. G. E. Wallace checks a car which wrecked in the front yard at 2354 Marietta Rd. NW, after striking a curb, making a complete turn in the air, striking the ground and turning over twice more before coming to rest. Police said the driver was J. D. Upton, 18, of 1006 Gun Club Dr., NW, home on leave from the Army. He was charged with speeding 85 miles an hour and improper passing. A passenger, listed as James Bailey, 20, of 976 Sims Ave., NW, home on leave from the Navy, was charged with disorderly conduct-disturbance. Both men escaped with scratches and bruises.

WARM OVATION

Tenor Lynch Brings Erin To Atlanta

By ALEX JOINER JR.

Irish tenor Christopher Lynch Thursday night painted a word picture of the beauties of old Erin and its coles for several hundred receptive Atlantans.

Lynch, protégé of the late John McCormick, sang a concert in Sacred Heart Auditorium—one of 44 he has sung in this country since October.

A couple of non-Irish items—a devout "Ave Maria" and an aria from "La Bohème"—crept into the program, but the remainder of it featured songs that have made the mellifluous-voiced Mr. Lynch world famous.

He has no great voice, but brought a great sense of style to such songs as "In the Garden Where the Prates Grow," "Gallway Bay," "The Rose of Tralee," "Kitty, My Love," and "Ireland, Mother Ireland."

The applause was warm.

Accompanying Lynch was Severin Turel, Polish composer-pianist, who himself received a prolonged ovation for his pyrotechnic playing of a Chopin medley and two of his own works—"Etude" and "Polish Rhapsody" written while he was a prisoner of war in Germany.

The concert was sponsored by the Sacred Heart Altar Society and the Mothers Club of Sacred Heart School.

This was second to Florida, which rose 122.6 per cent.

In return for the taxes, Lofton said the 22 million persons in the seven-state area received aid from federal and state governments.

For Every Head in Georgia--$261 in Taxes

Georgians paid an average of $261 in federal and state taxes for every man, woman and child in the past fiscal year.

That was shown Thursday in a report from the Atlanta field office of the United States Department of Commerce. The per capita taxation on Georgians ranked higher than the $257 average for the seven Southeastern states.

A total of $929,305,000 was collected in federal and state taxes in Georgia. North Carolina ranked first in the Southeast with $1,845,610,000. Total collections in Georgia, North Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and South Carolina were $5,643,622,000.

Merrill C. Lofton, Commerce Department manager, said that federal and state tax receipts in the region rose 90 per cent between 1944 and 1954. In Georgia, the increase was 101.2 per cent.

WSB Has Safety Slogan Contest

WSB-Radio is sponsoring a safety slogan contest in connection with Georgia's Dec. 15 "Safe Driving Day." Charles Maloof, chairman of the state observance, and Elmo Ellis, WSB director, announced Thursday.

The radio station will award more than $100 worth of prizes to first, second, and third prize winners in a competition now under way and to last through Dec. 15.

A gift Bible for the family that already has a Bible

Yes, most people on your Christmas list may own a Bible. But chances are it was written hundreds of years ago, and is filled with difficult, old-fashioned expressions that dull their eagerness to read.

Now you can give a Bible written in the living language of today—the great Revised Standard Version. Here is a Bible so clear and powerful, so easy to read, they'll turn to it twice as often. The RSVB is praised by religious leaders as a more accurate Bible, too... faithful to the earliest known manuscripts.

Give the Revised Standard Version this Christmas—you may help someone you love to enjoy all the help and stimulation the Bible offers in these troubled times.

The RSVB is published by Thomas Nelson and Sons, publishers of fine books since 1798.

Ferrell, Fuller Indicted In Patterson's Slaying to death by Fuller in the line of duty were exhumed for ballistics tests.

Judge Walter B. Jones of Montgomery said the murder trials probably will be held in January. He said the presiding judge will be appointed by the chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court.

McDonald Gallion, special counsel appointed by Alabama's Gov. Gordon Persons to aid in the murder investigation, said Ferrell and Fuller could be released under bond.

Sheriff Murphy and the two state investigators found Fuller in bed in his brick garage apartment about a mile from the courthouse. Fuller's wife said doctors advised that he should not be moved.

INJURED IN FALL

Murphy, who as chief deputy wore cowboy boots and expensive guns, told Murphy he knew the indictment was coming, that he had told his wife so Thursday morning. The former deputy, recovering from back injuries he said were suffered in a fall from a horse July 4, asked to see the indictment.

Murphy and the investigators left Fuller under guard of five National Guardsmen, then proceeded to Ferrell's house.

When they arrived at the large brick house located three miles from Phenix City on Seale road, Ferrell was not there. Investigators went inside while several carloads of newsmen and photographers waited outside the house.

The suspended solicitor's wife contacted him by telephone and 25 minutes later he drove into the driveway. He was alone.

STEPS FROM CAR

Grimfaced and wearing a light grey suit, hat and dark blue tie, Ferrell nervously smoked a cigarette as he stepped from the car. He was met by Murphy. "I've got a warrant," Murphy said, reaching into his inside coat pocket and pulling out a piece of paper.

Ferrell, his eyes circled by large dark rings, glanced at the paper. "Good enough," he said. "Okay, I'd like to know if you have talked with my wife," Ferrell said in a halting voice.

Murphy nodded that he had and Ferrell said, "I'd like to speak to her myself."

BRIEF GOODBYE

Murphy followed him into the house where Ferrell said a brief goodbye to his wife and three children, including a 6-week-old daughter.

At the courthouse Ferrell, blinking under the flashes of news cameras, made his way through a large crowd and into the building.

In the sheriff's office, the solicitor was booked just like any other prisoner. He clasped his hands in front of him as if to prevent shaking. Ferrell gave the routine arrest information to a National Guard sergeant.

Eyes, brown; weight, 155 pounds; height, five feet, eight and one-half inches.

NODS AT BROTHER

As he was led to the jail behind

JOYFUL REUNION—

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9.—Louis Ross, 55, is kissed by a niece, Mrs. Delores Caruso, after being pronounced sane today. Judge Loran Lewis declared Ross sane after several psychiatrists testified. Ross escaped from a hospital for the criminally insane a month ago, then went to court to prove he was sane. He had been in the hospital since 1933. In the 1920s he was known as "Laughing El" because of his hysterical laughter after committing holdups and his ability to elude police.

the courthouse, Ferrell nodded at his brother, Pelham, 30-year-old attorney. Pelham Ferrell looked as if he wanted to speak, but didn't know what to say.

As he entered the jail, Ferrell showed a faint smile for the first time when Murphy said something to him.

After Ferrell entered the jail, he complained of stomach trouble. A National Guard officer said Ferrell was carrying medicine which he had used for a stomach ailment.

The officer said Ferrell's main diet recently has consisted of milk and eggs and that the diet would be continued in jail.

Never Discussed Divorce With Marilyn, Sheppard Swears to Jury

crophone of the courtroom loudspeaker system.

Dressed in a dark blue suit, a knitted tie and a white button-collar shirt, Sheppard sketched for the jury many scenes of his happy home life and his devotion to his wife and hers to him.

She helped him with his professional work, doing typing for which she was paid by his family hospital in Bay Village, at the regular rate, he said. She took pride in the money she made, he said, and bought things for him and the house with it. She also joined him in sports, such as water skiing on Lake Erie, and had taken up golf just a week before "this tragedy," he said.

The state, which has painted a far different picture of the Sheppards' home life, contends he bludgeoned her to death after arguing with him about his love affairs with Susan Hayes, 25-year-old medical technician, and other women. The pretty Miss Hayes, the state's star witness, has admitted Sheppard was intimate with her over a period of 16 months. She testified Sheppard told her he loved her.

Corrigan touched on Miss Hayes name only briefly during direct examination. Once he asked about the Sheppards' trip to California last March where Miss Hayes says Sheppard shared a bedroom with her for seven days and bought her a watch.

Corrigan brought out only that Sheppard had seen Miss Hayes on the trip.

Sheppard said his only disagreement with his wife about Miss Hayes came when he told Marilyn about the watch he gave the red-haired technician during the California trip. He said he was going to put the watch on his hospital expense account but his wife said that would not be right, Sheppard said.

Sheppard went to the witness stand in the afternoon session of the trial after the morning was consumed by the testimony of two defense witnesses who passed by the suburban Bay Village Sheppard home on the night of Marilyn's death. The two men,

Leo Stawicki and Robert Knitter, both testified they had seen a bushy-haired man in a white shirt lurking on the highway near the Sheppard home that night.

SPANKED SON

Sheppard has maintained since he first called in friends on the murder morning that his wife was slain by a "bushy-haired man with a white top" who broke into the house and twice knocked out the athletic built Sheppard when he rushed to his wife's defense.

Both Stawicki and Knitter were asked to view Sheppard in court and said he was not the man they saw near the Sheppards' house.

The testimony that Sheppard once lost his temper in a blind fury and beat his son had come from Thomas Weigle, a first cousin of Sheppard's slain wife.

Sheppard said Chip had been showing "a little tendency" to hit his mother with toys and that Marilyn had been worried about it. On the night in question, Sheppard said, Chip had hit him with a tomahawk while he was watching a television show.

"I took him across my knee and gave him a few licks across his back end," Sheppard said.

He said the boy's pride was "very definitely hurt," but that from that time on he dropped the tendency to hit people.

"It was probably something your father did to you, wasn't it?" Corrigan asked.

"Yes, he did," Sheppard replied with a grin.

Sheppard, a high school football, basketball and track star, told of his high school romance with Marilyn and their marriage in 1945.

"She and my father were never missing" at his high school games, he said.

SHIFT

After they were married in Los Angeles and moved back to Bay Village, Sheppard said his father lent them the money to buy their home. He testified they opened it to youngsters of the neighborhood and established club rooms for them over the garage.

Corrigan suddenly shifted his approach and said:

Q. There was some information given to the jury about talk of a divorce. Was there any talk of divorce between you and Marilyn?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any disagreement between you about children around the house?

A. Oh, a little bit. Marilyn was there all day while I was at work. She said she didn't want the place overrun with kids. At times we didn't even know some of them.

Q. Now as to the washing machine? (Previous witnesses had testified Sheppard and his wife argued over her household spending.)

A. The dishwasher?

Q. There was a disagreement?

A. We . . . I went to Boston on business. On my return I found that Marilyn had bought a new sink, a garbage disposal unit and a dishwasher and had used the money that I had planned to use for setting up an insurance program. I told her I wished she had told me in advance so I could have arranged the payments differently. I let her know how I felt about it. Then I arranged to pay the insurance in installments.

Christian Scientists Hold Man Is Really Sinless

tiredly on faith and prayer, or called in a doctor too late?
One might as readily ask, without intending to give offense, "Have not many persons died because they refused the spiritual method of Christian Science, and relied entirely on material aid?"
No statistics prove that the healing methods of material medicine are superior to those of Christian Science.

We do know that thousands of men and women who were pronounced "incurable," and who spent years in invalidism and suffering, turned to Christian Science and were healed. Such persons are numerous among the members of the Christian Science church.

VARYING SUCCESS
Efforts to understand and apply any rule may appear more successful in some instances than in others. The failure to bring certain facts to light does not alter the verity of the facts themselves. The laws of mathematics, for instance, may fail to reveal a correct answer when improperly applied; indeed, many sciences fail to reveal certain answers even when properly applied.
One does not judge the medical profession by the cases it loses, nor by the overcrowded hospitals and graveyards. May not Christian Science ask that it be judged by its potentialities for good and its achievement in canceling the sense of disease, in erasing sin (and the penalties for sin) from the experience of innumerable persons?

Do Christian Scientists refuse medical attention in the case of fractures or accidents?

There are innumerable instances of bone fractures which have been set and healed perfectly under Christian Science treatment—without medical or surgical aid. Results depend upon honest effort, correct understanding and constancy in Christian Science practice.

A Christian Scientist does not surrender his status as a free man or woman under God. He works out his own salvation by following the course which wisdom dictates to him.

If the Christian Scientist has not reached the degree of spiritual understanding which is needed for healing by spiritual means and resorts to some other means, he obviously cannot be said to be employing fully the method of Christian Science.

He does not undergo condemnation for this; nor does he assume any burden or guilt. He is always free to improve his spiritual understanding and employ it exclusively, thus restoring his status as a Christian Scientist.

EVIL, HYPNOTIC
If God is infinite and good, how does evil exist?

Evil is hypnotic. It has no more reality than a dream—yet to the dreamer it appears real. The nothingness of evil—and of that which sees, feels or believes in evil—is proved through spiritual awakening.

Does Christian Science believe in sin?

Man is really sinless and free. Sin is the belief in the real existence of a mind or minds other than the divine Mind, God. Mortal mind, which believes in decaying and dying, is the sinner. St. Paul called it the "carnal" mind. If a person accepts the carnal mind, its sins will appear to be his sins, and its suffering his suffering.

Christian Scientists rid themselves of sin by breaking the false notion that the carnal mind is real, or one's own. Penalty for sin lasts only as long as such false belief lasts. The Christian Scientist tries to live so that the divine Mind is revealed as his mind.

Christian Scientists hold that sin is unreal. But this does not mean that one can sin with impunity. The sinner does not know that sin is unreal; if he did, this would destroy his capacity for sinning.

HEAVEN AND HELL
Do Christian Scientists believe in heaven or hell?

Yes—but not in a geographical sense. As Mary Baker Eddy said: "The sinner makes his own hell by doing evil, and the saint his own heaven by doing right."

Why don't Christian Scientists use the word "death" or the word "died?"

They do use both words. The words appear in Christian Science periodicals where the context requires them.

But the term "passed on" is considered more exact by Christian Scientists, who accept literally the fact that individual life is indestructible. We believe that what is called "death" is not termination, but only an incident in the dream of mortality, an experience of mortal mind, not the divine Mind.
Does Christian Science maintain that death itself can be eliminated?

Yes. The Christian Scientist believes that material decay and destruction can be stopped by the full realization of divine truth. Through progressive improvement of one's spiritual understanding which alleviates the circumstances of death, the ultimate elimination of death itself can be achieved. In this way, true immortality can be realized.

Do Christian Scientists hold funeral services?

It is perfectly proper for the family to engage a Christian Scientist to read passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook. These passages are intended to remind the hearers that life, God and man (who is the individual expression of life) are eternal. It is also proper to have no reading at all.

What is the attitude of Christian Science toward birth control? There is a whole chapter on marriage in Mrs. Eddy's book, in which this statement occurs ("Science and Health," p. 56:7-8): "Marriage is the legal and moral provision for generation among human kind."

Mrs. Eddy explains that marriage will continue subject to moral regulations needed to secure increasing virtue until mankind attains the spiritual understanding which discerns the perfect spiritual creation, untainted by matter.

In accordance with this teaching, married couples are free to follow their own judgment as to having children and as to the number they will have.

VACCINATION VIEWS
Do Christian Scientists oppose vaccination?

Christian Scientists do not oppose vaccination for those who want it and believe in it. They do oppose compulsory vaccination for Christian Scientists—as a trespass upon their religious convictions.

Mrs. Eddy specifically instructed Christian Scientists to obey the law, but to seek legal exemption from those laws which violate their religious rights or the rights of conscience. To exempt Christian Scientists from vaccination does no harm to others—especially if vaccination is as effective as it is claimed to be for those who believe in it.

Incidentally, Christian Scientists and their children obey all quarantine regulations because they don't want their neighbors to become fearful of their safety because Christian Scientists refrain from material methods.

Why do Christian Science students request exemptions from certain examinations—in bacteriology, for instance?

The only instruction to which Christian Scientists object is that which tends to set up the method of material medicine as the only healing method or system. Christian Scientists object to picturing the processes of disease in ways which visualize the terror which begets disease. They also object to compulsory medical regulations because, in effect, such regulations constitute indoctrination which may undermine the religious teaching of the home.

Would Christian Scientists abolish sanitation and public health measures?

No. Christian Scientists advocate sanitation because they love cleanliness—inner and outer. They respect the right of the community to take such measures as the community considers essential—so long as these measures do not impose compulsory medication on those who practice their own spiritual method of healing.

Incidentally, Christian Scientists feel that reliance on spiritual means alone, to safeguard public health, is wise only in proportion to the spiritual understanding of health among the people in the area involved.

VIEWS ON PSYCHIATRY
What is the attitude of Christian Science toward psychiatry and psychoanalysis?

There is no similarity between medical psychiatry and Christian Science. Christian Science is religion. It treats all ills by prayer. As Mrs. Eddy said: "To heal . . . is to base your practice on im-

Hatoyama Given Helm In Japan

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

TOKYO, Dec. 9—The Japanese parliament picked Ichiro Hatoyama, a conservative politician, tonight to serve as Japan's premier until nation elections are held in the spring.

Hatoyama replaces Shigeru Yoshida, who retired two days ago. Yoshida withdrew from the leadership of Japan's government before a coalition of Socialists and Conservatives, which tonight chose Hatoyama, could approve a motion of nonconfidence in his six-year-old regime.

257 VOTES

Hatoyama received 257 votes in the crucial lower house voting to 191 for Takeo Okata, Yoshida's successor as president of the Liberal Party. Hatoyama's ballots came from members of his newly formed Democratic Party plus those of right and left-wing Socialists.

As the price of their support for Hatoyama, the Socialists got a guarantee the new premier would dissolve the lower house of parliament so nationwide balloting could choose a new legislature "by early in March." Under Japan's constitution, such elections must be held within 40 days of dissolution.

Thus, Hatoyama would have to dissolve the house of representatives within a week or so after parliament returns from its new holiday on Jan. 20.

SURRENDER

If it carries out its public pledge, the new government of Premier Hatoyama will have little or no opportunity to affect Japan's internal or foreign policies. Hatoyama's election was possible only as a result of his surrender to the demands of the Socialists. Only yesterday, the new premier and his lieutenants said they expected to be able to say in power long enough to submit and get approval for the fiscal 1955 budget.

Reuther Calls Sec. Mitchell Just a Front

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9 (AP)—CIO President Walter P. Reuther today told delegates to the union organization's convention that he was "shocked" at the action of the White House in repudiating Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell's statement to them.

Mitchell had addressed the convention Tuesday and expressed his opposition to "right to work" laws adopted by 17 states, declaring that he favored permitting a union shop type of agreement.

The day following Mitchell's speech, a White House statement said that Mitchell was expressing his personal beliefs in his statement on the "right to work" laws.

"If the Secretary of Commerce stands before a convention of the National Assn. of Manufacturers and states a policy, you will not find that he is repudiated the next morning by the White House," Reuther declared.

"When the Secretary of Commerce makes a policy statement, that becomes the policy of the administration. When the Secretary of Labor makes a policy statement, that is repudiated."

"I believe the people of America ought to recognize the political fraud that is taking place in Washington," Reuther said. "The Secretary of Labor is not a member of the Cabinet. He is just there as convenient window-dressing to make the working people believe they have a voice in the policy-making decisions of our government."

Scientists Ask Realistic Security Plan: Strive for Gains, Cut Fear of Leaks

By WILLIAM L. LAURENCE

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—Representatives of the nation's organized scientific community are seeking a radical change in the administration's basic concept of internal security. They favor switching from a policy "that attempts almost exclusively to minimize our losses to one that places greatly increased emphasis on maximizing our gains."

The suggestion to alter the entire approach to the problem of security risks is contained in a formal declaration of policy that is to be published tomorrow by the board of directors of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, largest and most influential group of related scientific organizations in the world.

"Those charged with safeguarding the United States," a summary of the declaration points out, "have sought to minimize the danger of internal subversion through the screening of government employees and persons having access to classified information."

"This program is necessary," but it poses a serious dilemma: the more completely we succeed in reducing the danger that information now in our possession may leak to a potential enemy, the more risk we run of interfering with scientific progress and of reducing the technological superiority and the moral and physical strength upon which victory in the ultimate test would depend.

The "basic fact" is, the scientists declare, "that there simply are no such things as permanent scientific secrets."

"If security demands scientific superiority, and if superiority cannot be achieved by attempts to keep scientific progress secret, then how can superiority be achieved and maintained? Clearly the security of the nation requires the most favorable circumstances for the advancement of science, an environment that will foster a healthier, more imaginative, more energetic development than that which serves the enemies of freedom."

"BETTER USE"

As it is likely that the United States would be outnumbered by our potential enemies, the declaration asserts, our superior strength must come from making better use of the material and human resources we do have. From this it follows that "ability to make positive contributions to the nation's welfare and progress should be a primary criterion of a person's suitability to any position other than positions involving access to the types of information that must be closely guarded.

"It is necessary to ask 'What security risk is incurred in employing this person?' But it is also vital to ask 'What risk of delayed progress or diminished achievement is incurred in not employing him?'"

TWO CHANGES

The scientists propose two changes. First, that greater weight be given to a man's potential contributions. The risk involved must still be considered, "but for any given position we can afford a larger risk if we stand to make a great gain than if we can expect only a small one."

Second, they propose that "the risk be measured with more regard for the nature of the work to be done than has frequently been true in the past."

No "satisfactory justification has yet been advanced," they assert, "for screening of persons engaged in unclassified research, in, say, biochemistry, by the standards appropriate for screening those who have access to the details of war plans and advanced weapons."

Cloud Seeders Went Way Up High And, Lo, the Rains Came and Came

BRISBANE, Australia, Dec. 9 (AP)—A rainmaking team moved into Conclurry, in northwest Queensland, a week ago and it hasn't stopped raining since.

Within hours after the experiment's start, rain began to fall. By last weekend up to 4 inches had soaked a wide stretch of cattle country and by yesterday falls totaled 5½ inches.

It is the world's first "wide range" rainmaking experiment. Instead of giving chemical treatment to individual clouds, silver iodide is being dropped from heights of up to 15,000 feet over areas 200 miles across.

Chief rain scientist J. Bolton cautioned: "We won't know for about two months whether we have anything to do with the rain." His team is drawn from the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization.

Secret Passions at Arsenal Probed in Beauty's Death

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Dec. 9 (AP)—A grand jury was directed today to take up the case of secret passions at a secret weapons base resulting in the mysterious death of a Polish beauty, and the arrest of one of her estranged husband's fellow officers.

Sheriff Cecil Sanderson called it a "case of sex, women and whisky" but declined to elaborate. He said the grand jury would begin studying evidence tomorrow.

Jailed by civil authorities was Capt. Marcus F. Bluth, 40-year-old judge advocate general of the Redstone Arsenal, the government's top-secret guided missile station where scientists experiment in new weapons and contemplate trips to the moon.

Bluth, held on an open charge, was identified as a friend of Capt. and Mrs. Patrick Meighen before the couple's recent separation. Last Monday, Mrs. Meighen, a blond former war bride, was found dead in her Huntsville apartment and a preliminary post mortem produced evidence she had been beaten, strangled and raped. She had been dead several days.

Meighen had taken up quarters on the Redstone post previously and he denied any knowledge of how his wife died.

Unofficial sources said Bluth, a native of Joliet, Ill., also steadfastly denied knowledge of the killing of 32-year-old Helen Theresa Meighen. But officers said he was the last person known to have seen her alive.

Sanderson admitted that Bluth could gain temporary freedom on a writ of habeas corpus because he was held without charge.

However, a Madison County grand jury may first bring an indictment in the death of the daughter of a well-to-do Warsaw family, most of whom were killed during World War II.

Authorities said Bluth was seen leaving an American Legion Club with Mrs. Meighen Friday midnight after Thanksgiving. He said both then showed signs of heavy drinking.

MILLION DOLLAR PLANE CRASHES, BURNS—HATBORO, Pa., Dec. 9—Firefighters attempt to subdue flames as a U.S. Navy Super Constellation burns after crash while landing at the Johnsville Naval Air Station near here today. Plane hit a rough spot on runway, turned over, and caught fire. All 20 occupants scrambled to safety. Ten were injured, none seriously. The plane, costing more than a million dollars, was a total loss.

U.S. Urged To Improve Relations With Peiping

By ELIE ABEL

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—The United States was urged today, without sacrificing prestige or national interest, to strive for a realistic understanding with Communist China.

This suggestion came from the National Planning Assn.'s Committee on International Policy in a 17-page statement on "American policy in the new phase of the cold war."

Signed by 27 prominent laymen, the statement advocated a sweeping reappraisal of military and economic policy, together with a truly bipartisan foreign policy as "no longer a matter of choice but an absolute necessity."

BIPARTISAN POLICY

With a Republican in the White House and the Democrats about to organize the new Congress, the United States must have a bipartisan policy "if we are to have a foreign policy at all," the committee asserted.

It advocated a fresh approach to the problem of the two Chinas, Nationalist and Communist, warning that continued crisis in the Far East would carry with it a recurring threat of war and piecemeal defeat for the West.

"Surely our endeavor should be to achieve a more stable relationship, recognized by both sides, without, however, a disastrous loss either of prestige or of real assets in the process," the committee held.

PERMANENT SETTLEMENT

The fact that a permanent settlement of the China issue cannot now be attempted, the committee argued, should not rule out efforts toward "a more peaceful modus vivendi than has recently prevailed."

Such an understanding might be possible, the committee said, if the Peiping regime recognized that the United States would continue to protect Formosa against armed invasion and if Washington, likewise, recognized that "most of our allies, if not we ourselves, are going to put their relations with the government of Communist China on a more normal basis."

Mutual acceptance of these facts could provide the basis for improved relations, the study group contended.

CENTRAL IDEA

Frank Altschul, chairman of the board, General American Investors Co., headed the committee that drew up the policy statement.

The central idea advocated by his group was that the United States must do a bolder and more

Bridge Climber Got Higher Than The Law Allows

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 9—A structural iron worker climbed to the top of the superstructure of the Sixth Street Bridge in Pittsburgh today to find out whether he or the bridge was wobbly, he told police.

After his antics blocked trolley and auto traffic on the bridge for almost a half hour, the man, who identified himself as Elmer R. Tau, 53, of Pittsburgh, said as he climbed down:

"I didn't know whether I was wobbly or the bridge was wobbly. I went up to check."

Tau was lodged in jail on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Adenauer Parliament Grip Is Threatened by Coalition

MUNICH, Germany, Dec. 9 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's firm hold on the Bonn Parliament's upper house was shaken today in one of the biggest domestic setbacks he has suffered this year.

The anti-rearmament Socialists and three Right Wing parties announced a decision to form an unprecedented state coalition which would end Adenauer's eight-year control of the Bavarian state government.

LOSE MAJORITY

The surprise move seemed virtually certain to deprive Adenauer of his two-thirds majority in the Bonn Bundestag (upper house), since the new state government will appoint its six representatives in the federal body.

If Adenauer loses his two-thirds majority in the Bundestag it would pose a serious threat to implementation of the Paris treaties on German rearmament.

Leaders of the Christian Social Union, which is the Bavarian ally of Adenauer's Christian Democratic party, said there still was a possibility, however, that the new coalition would fall apart in trying to agree on apportionment of seats in the state cabinet, thus opening the way to new negotiations with the Adenauer party.

Observers pointed out, too, that unlike those from the other German states Bavaria's senators in the Bundestag are not bound by instructions so that some of them might still vote for rearmament.

ALARM RISING

This upset in strongly Catholic Bavaria, which has been a heavy supporter of the predominantly Catholic Christian Democrats, occurred as the Bonn government and Allied diplomats were becoming alarmed by a mounting hostility to rearmament in West Germany.

A widespread "count me out" feeling among trade unionists and World War II veterans with respect to conscription and the economic load of rearmament has been pointed out by politicians. Demonstrations against rearmament have occurred recently in three cities, and opponents of rearmaments are reported organizing in a score of places. The new anti-Adenauer coalition in Bavaria comprises the Socialists, who, lost by a clear margin to the Christian Social Union (CSU) in the Nov. 28 elections; the Bavarian party; the Free Democrats (FDP); and the Refugee party (BHE).

Gov. Persons Better After Heart Attack

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 9 (AP)—Joshing with doctors and nurses, Gov. Gordon Persons was reported late today to be making a swift comeback from an early morning heart attack.

"This is one time you can truthfully write the governor was almost unavailable for comment," he jokingly told a newsman who was allowed in his hospital room briefly.

Gov. Persons, who is 52, was still in an oxygen tent but his condition was reported as satisfactory after a Birmingham heart specialist, Dr. Tinsley Harrison, completed his examination.

Vernon Merritt, executive secretary to the governor, said results of an electrocardiogram were "very encouraging."

NEWS FROM CITY HALL

Hartsfield Calls Zoning Meeting

By HERMAN HANCOCK
Mayor Hartsfield Thursday called a special meeting of the aldermanic board for 10 a. m. Friday to expedite passage of sweeping new zoning ordinances and land use maps.

The call was one of the first official acts of the mayor following his return to Atlanta Wednesday after a month-long tour of West Germany. Aldermen are authorized to consider zoning and any other matters they think important.

Ald. Hamilton Douglas, chairman of the board's special zoning committee, requested the special meeting so recommendations can be sent again to the Municipal Planning Board in the hope that the measures can be ready for final passage at the Dec. 20 aldermanic board session, the last one scheduled for 1954.

The aldermanic board's committee has studied recommendations filed by the planning board and has proposed several changes. The ordinance now must go to the planning board for consideration of proposed changes by the committee. Afterwards any changes made by the municipal group must be considered by the aldermanic committee before being offered for final passage.

Greyhound Men Start Strike Vote

Atlantic Greyhound bus drivers began a secret vote here Thursday on a walkout tentatively set for midnight Dec. 17. The ballots will be counted next Tuesday.

The proposed strike, if approved, would halt 14 daily trips between Atlanta and Charlotte, N.C., five between Atlanta and Charleston, S.C., and local runs between Atlanta and Athens, Gainesville, Buford and Lawrenceville.

Drivers, who became members of the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees last October, began talk of a strike after a dispute involving Christmas bonuses.

Max M. Cuba, former councilman and chairman of the planning board, Thursday promised prompt action by his group. He said he will call a special meeting, probably for next Tuesday, to consider the proposed changes and will do everything possible to clear the path for passage at the Dec. 20 session.

"Of course, it will require some time to work out complete accord," Cuba said. "Our differences, however, are not major and we believe we can reach amicable conclusions. Our major concern is that we get uniform zoning ordinances and uniform procedures for Atlanta and Fulton County.

"We will do everything consistent with what is considered to be for the public good to expedite action so that the new measures can be given first approval before the contract with Harland Bartholomew & Associates, St. Louis planning experts who made the original studies, expires Dec. 31."

'My Angels' Is Top Civic Production

By PAUL JONES

"My Three Angels," a comedy in three acts by Sam and Bella Spewack, was given a splendid production Thursday night by the Atlanta Civic Theater at the Community Playhouse in the opening of a three-night engagement.

The show, one of the most delightful offered by the ACT organization in several years, was as professional a presentation as most of the touring companies have given here. There was not a weak point in the entire performance.

Production-wise it was as pretty a show as any one would want to see. Lighting by Hill Belmont made a truly effective and theatrical staging of the production. The set was artistic and the acting was superlative.

Lila Kennedy, who directed, got the most out of a sterling cast which included Jennings Herty, Joe Ewing and Jack Brock, as the three convicts; Bob Smith, Muriel Moore and LeFay Leake as the Ducot family; Harry Jennings, Bruce Wilshire, Walt Taylor in supporting roles. Herty's performance recalled some of the art of Paul Muni, in voice, gestures and mannerisms, and he played his part most naturally.

The set was designed by Marge Manderson. The master carpenter was Jim Muma, and the construction crew was headed by Cornelia Johnson. Good holiday fare, for the play's action deals with Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. "My Three Angels" will be repeated Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p. m.

Anti-Merger Plea To Face Principals

A controversial resolution attacking present trends toward consolidation of smaller public schools will be acted upon at a called meeting of the Georgia High School Principals Association in Macon Saturday.

W. Fred Blackmon of Alma, association president, said.

The resolution has been presented by Bill Greer, a new member of the group's accrediting committee. Greer seeks to make it possible for the accrediting commission to approve schools regardless of size.

His resolution would remove average daily attendance requirements and would substitute "evaluation of a high school's philosophy, plant, and program" as basis for accreditations. The resolution asks that the principals' association go on record as "opposing indiscriminate consolidation of schools on a fixed formula basis."

STUDY IS ASKED
Principals in 10 congressional districts have been asked to study the resolution. Blackmon said the Saturday meeting had been called so that the group may "take definite action that may affect the future accrediting of more than 100 small schools in Georgia."

OTHER OFFICERS
Besides Blackmon, state officers are Howard C. Boston of Chatsworth, vice president; Herbert Robinson of Dawsonville, secretary-treasurer, and Harold McNabb of Albany, coordinator.

Directors are elected from each congressional district and include H. O. Cravey, Reidsville; Paul B. Robertson, Albany; Carl Story, Warner Robins; W. F. Smith, Shellman; Kenneth Moore, Thomaston; Ben J. Hutchinson, College Park; R. H. Cooper, Sparta; R. H. Miller, Trion; Thomas Edwards, Jr., Woodbine; J. P. King, Dalton; and Inman Davis, Lavonia.

Glynn Sends Outstanding Young Man

Glynn County's "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" in 1932 and one of the state's outstanding young men will succeed the veteran Charlie Gowen as representative of Glynn County in the Georgia Legislature in January.

William R. Killian, 34-year-old lawyer, was elected to succeed Gowen who made an unsuccessful race for governor. Killian received a state Jaycee award as one of five outstanding young men of Georgia for the year 1932.

When Killian was elected in his first political venture last summer, it was the first time in Glynn County history a father and son were on the same ballot. His father, Paul Killian, was reelected county commissioner.

The younger Killian has served as recorder of the Brunswick police court, this being an appointive job. He has practiced law in Brunswick since his admission to the bar in 1917, following his graduation from the University of Georgia Law School. Killian was president of the Brunswick-Glynn County Community Chest in 1932-33.

He is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church, member of the American Legion, past president of the Brunswick Junior Chamber of Commerce, past vice president of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce, and member of the Elks and Kiwanis Club.

The representative-elect is married to the former Peggy Harper. They have two sons, ages 6 and 3. Killian was born in Gadsden, Ala., Nov. 15, 1920, and he has lived in Brunswick since 1929.

Celestine Sibley A Need That's Not Her Own

The letter was one of several in the morning mail that spoke of need but the first sentence was arresting.

"I know you are a busy, busy woman and I ask your forgiveness for writing to you at this busy season, but I have a terrible urge to write everybody I know and love this week to tell them of my need."

And then imagine what her need is: Not her need at all but what she conceives to be the need of her community! She is 55 years old and her children, one of her own and one adopted, are grown women with families of their own but problems of other mothers weigh heavily on her.

"My own don't need me much now," she wrote, "but by nature I am a mother, a widow, poor and colored but I always by some miracle have what is needed when people come asking at my door and I give with open hand and heart."

And now she is concerned because there is no place in Griffin where a working colored mother can leave her small children. She knows there are many who regard this as a welfare problem but as she put it, "The welfare have their hands full and seemly have forgotten the colored children."

What she wants to do is get an old house that is big enough to house several children and open a nursery where she can give both day care and boarding care to Negro children who need it. She hasn't the money to buy such a house but she believes she could get one repaired and made comfortable if she could get it either bought or rent-free.

Now I don't know the writer of this letter. She signs herself Mrs. A. C. Banks. And I don't know the specific needs in Griffin but I can well believe that it's difficult for a working Negro mother to find day care for her children because it is difficult here. One of the best mothers I know—a Negro woman who has poured years of her love and care into rearing a family of white children—never works a day without sick dread in her heart for what her own children may be getting into. Except for the casual, haphazard care of the neighbors she has to leave them unattended many long days.

It's very probably true in Griffin and it may be that citizens there would like to investigate and help this woman with such a school if it is practicable. The Junior Service League in Gainesville sponsored a day nursery which received the enthusiastic support of both the Negro and white members of the community and filled a great need.

Anyhow Mrs. A. C. Banks says, "I have lived in this town all of my life. My life is an open book. I don't mind being FBI or GBI or whatever they do."

Well, I hope nobody will FBI or GBI her but it would be wonderful if somebody would investigate and give her a hand with her project. She lives at 425 South Ninth St. in Griffin.

Atlantans Received By Royalty

By ANNIE LOU HARDY
"Brig. General and Mrs. Troup Miller Jr., intoned the English butler at Knowlby Hall, the Lancashire estate of the Earl and the Countess of Derby near London.

Whereupon Atlanta's Gen. Miller in full Air Force dress uniform, complete with his decorations and medals, and his wife, the former Julia Meador of Atlanta, in a green formal, entered the stately drawing room—the only Americans invited to meet England's Queen Elizabeth and her prince consort.

The affair was a private reception given recently for Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh, with 250 top civic officials and nobility of the county as invited guests. Knowlby Hall, one of England's famed ancestral seats, is near the giant U.S. Air Base at Burtonwood, which is commanded by Gen. Miller.

"We had been at a previous party for the Queen but there were 5,000 guests and we only saw her from a distance," writes Mrs. Miller, "but this time we shook hands with the royal couple and were privileged to chat with them for several minutes."

'BOWLED OVER'
According to Gen. Miller, he was practically bowled over as he approached the receiving line and the Queen thrust out her hand and gave him a hearty handshake. "Of course the bow I had practiced so assiduously for days faded completely away," he said.

After the receiving line had broken up, Lord Derby escorted the Queen and the Duke around the palatial rooms of the big house and gave the guests an opportunity to talk to them.

The Queen, who was quite well briefed about Burtonwood, the largest air base in the United Kingdom, recalled that the Duke had visited there in 1953, and Mrs. Miller immediately invited her to visit there herself when she was in Lancashire again.

Her Majesty asked about the people at Burtonwood and questioned the general as to its size. She added that she had noticed the Americans gathered on the East Lancashire Highway earlier that morning and expressed regret that she had been unable to drive slower or to stop and talk for a few minutes.

WHO CAN RESIST PEEKING?
Jan Hill Models Child's Lounge Suit

GRACIOUS, CHARMING
The Millers found the Queen most gracious and charming and altogether natural, while the Duke, an affable, forthright fellow, seemed intensely interested in everything the Americans were doing in England.

He mentioned his trip to Burtonwood, then under command of Brig. Gen. Robert C.

Oliver, and asked about Gen. Oliver's retirement and also about a former commander, Maj. Gen. Francis H. Griswold.

Mrs. Miller now considers that the gown she wore, a beautiful sea green taffeta, has made history.

"I bought it to wear to President Eisenhower's inaugural ball," she says "and now that it has the added association with English royalty, it becomes a treasured and historic keepsake."

There's one date a girl has when she doesn't want to get caught slopping around in any old thing.

Christmas Eve, when she's waiting for Santa is much too magical a time for that old bathrobe with the orange juice spots.

It's a night of enchantment . . . you feel prickly all over . . . and you're sure the sounds made by the wind in the trees are Dancer and Prancer whirling in from the North Pole.

When you're snuggled by the fire listening to "The Night Before Christmas" and trying so hard to keep awake and catch HIM, it's fun to be wearing something enchanting.

A pink nylon penguin trimmed with nylon lace with its own matching nightie makes any little girl irresistible. They can be purchased separately, too. Penguin is $8.98 and nightie is $6.98.

A rose quilted rayon crepe robe is toasty warm. It has a shirred yoke and pearl studded lapels. It's $6.98 and a white nylon nightie with rosebud trimming to wear with it is the same.

White challis pajamas with enough ruffles and lace to make a little girl feel like a princess are around $5.

And an outfit as smart as one mother might wear, has black velvet foreword pants with su-tash trimming and a blue rayon jacket, quilted and warm. Price of the set is $6.98.

Clothes to wear on this BIG night in a little girl's life are available in Atlanta. For shopping information, call WA. 5050, Ext. 391.

CHRISTMAS at the "Y" becomes official when members of the Hill and Dale Garden Club hang their holiday decorations throughout the building and chapel of the YWCA on Edgewood avenue. At left is Mrs. I. N. Kagey, club president, giving the final touch to her arrangement, which is part of the double-door trimming at the Y entrance.

Right is Mrs. J. B. Robinson, a club member, who, with other members, trimmed a tree in the drawing room and placed wreaths and other Yule trimmings in the building for the 10th year. Mrs. Harry Bolling made the matching wreath to adorn the other doorway. The Hill and Dale Club gave the brick-enclosed patio at the Y and maintains it throughout the year.

DAILY GUIDE—The talk can be of power and energy and of how it should be used, or who should have it. The issues under discussion affect the masses. We have to get around to thinking in terms of the world of people, not just our family, our neighborhood or town, even state or nation.

Don't let down today or tomorrow, but maintain a high peak of achievement. Think big, and talk big if you can back it up, but don't bluster or bully as that attitude will boomerang. Over the weekend and into the middle of next week should prove less of a strain than recent weeks more behind the scenes, attending to an infinite variety of little chores, and keeping vigilant.

It is a good evening to spend at home out of crowds.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, SAGITTARIUS! It may be that you have had to take things a little quietly lately, but now you can spread your wings a little and get around again. This promises to be a busy time for you with special emphasis on partnership matters or contact with the public. Say or write what is necessary during this period as you will more favorably articulate now.

Watch out for friction in the home and in March be prepared for some opposition or criticism. February could bring some complication.

Atlanta Woman 'Talks' Windows Into Church

By YOLANDE GWIN

An attractive blonde young woman, wife of an Emory University professor, has enriched the beauty of many Atlanta churches merely by talking.

Mrs. Thomas English talks about stained glass windows, a subject on which she has an unlimited supply of information. In fact she has "talked" more than 100 into local churches.

"I grew up looking at stained glass," she says.

"When I came to Atlanta to live in the late twenties, my husband and I were members of the Shop Club, a group composed of musicians, professors, architects and the like.

"They talked shop—hence the name of the club. Being the wife of a professor I just sat back and acknowledged him as speaker of the house.

"At one meeting I was asked to talk about a subject nearest to my heart—stained glass windows. Since then I don't think I've missed a month discussing the subject. In addition to enjoying it, I feel that it's a tribute to my parents."

Her parents are the late Mr. and Mrs. William Willet of Philadelphia.

The Willet family is recognized as one of America's foremost makers of stained glass windows. It was William Willet who conceived the idea of making the windows in this country.

ANCIENT ART
Mrs. English will tell you that stained glass is one of the ancient arts.

"They should compliment the architectural lines of any building," she reports.

In 1909 Mrs. English's father made the first antique medallion window in this country for the Calvary Episcopal Church in Pittsburgh. The church was a memorial to Gen. Howe of Revolutionary fame.

Today the window is still illuminated from the interior as well as the exterior of the building. The Atlanta matron's mother designed the first stained glass window in the chapel at the United States Military Academy, West Point, given by the alumni to the World War I heroes.

"Stained glass windows stress the spiritual theme and it is quite appropriate that at this season of the year that some have been added to the Lutheran

The bridal couple left by motor for a month's wedding trip, going first to New Orleans and then to Mexico. On their return they will go to Florida from where they will fly to Havana.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhine will reside in Atlanta where the former is a well-known building contractor.

ED SULLIVAN

Tyrone Is Soft Touch Near Christmas Time

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Tyrone Power, rehearsing with Katharine Cornell, employed a lull in rehearsals to check off a list of Christmas presents he hadn't yet taken care of. Quite naturally, the conversation turned to Christmas in general.

"I'll never forget one particular Christmas that I spent in New York," said Tyrone. "It was in 1934 and I'd come to New York from Chicago, trying to land a job on the stage. Nobody wanted me and on Christmas Eve, I had exactly $3 left."

"Luckily a friend invited me to his home for the evening," Power smiled ruefully at the recollection. "I counted out the $3 and said to myself: 'The hell with it. It's Christmas and you've got to celebrate.' I went down stairs, spent $2 for flowers for my friend's wife, went upstairs, put on my tails and top hat, gave the doorman a 25 cent tip to call a cab and used my last 75 cents for the cab ride."

"After the party, I walked 40 blocks back to the room I was living in because I simply couldn't bring myself to tell my host that, regardless of the tails and top hat, I was flat broke. Ever since then, I've been a soft touch for any derelict around the holiday because I've never forgotten that particular Christmas Eve."

Robert Young best remembers Christmas, 1933. His wife and their first baby came home from the hospital on Christmas morning. Doug Fairbanks Jr. remembers the Christmas bicycle his father bought him when he was 10 years old.

Ginger Rogers remembers the Christmas when she was 16 years old: "We were in Chicago and it started snowing, first time I'd ever seen snow because I'd never been out of Texas before."

"I was 11 years old," remembers Barbara Stanwyck. "On Christmas Day, of all the days in the year, the family with whom I was living said that I'd have to go back to the orphan asylum because they were going to have a child of their own."

Nothing Like Being Home At Christmas, Como Says

By PERRY COMO
Special to The Constitution

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Fifteen years ago I was doing one-night stands across the country with Ted Weems and his band. My wife, Roselle, and our baby son, Ronnie, were both home in Canonsburg, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

It was almost Christmas, and people everywhere were thinking about little else. But, for us in the band the gruelling one-nighters left little time for real holiday spirit.

The band had a two-day break in the tight schedule. I checked timetables to get me to Canonsburg and back again in time for our next performance. After a late show, I hurried to the deserted station to catch my train.

This enterprising little station, to make the holiday trip home a brighter one, had considerably white-washed the roof and hung artificial icicles from the eaves! The nerve-wracking grind was forgotten, and I knew that from the moment you decide to go home, home becomes the most wonderful place in all the world.

I have gotten home—somehow—every holiday since then, and I have seen the magic that draws the wanderers back to the hearth at Christmastime. I have seen it in busy New York where "home for the holidays" to some people is merely a trip on the subway.

And I've seen it when people share the tinsel and trees and turkeys, in renewed family ties and friendships.

It wasn't until this year that I was able to repay the debt I owed wonderful tune and a pretty lyric. "Home for the Holidays" is one of those songs you enjoy singing, and you keep singing it . . . until you can't get it out of your head. It has all the sentiment—and all the bounce, too—to make it a perennial favorite. In fact, when it caught our fancy, we thought it would make a perfect theme song for the holiday season, and we decided to use the chorus to close our CBS radio and TV shows on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

Perry Como is heard on WACA radio at 9 p.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Regents Send Legislators Details of Doubled Needs

The Board of Regents and Chancellor Harmon Caldwell Thursday sent letters to all incoming members of the Georgia Legislature, explaining in detail the need for a double appropriation for the University System next year.

The board recently voted to ask the General Assembly to increase the appropriation from the present $11,499,020 to $25,034,971.

THE LETTERS

The letters signed by Chairman R. O. Arnold and Chancellor Caldwell said:

"Because of the large increase in student enrollment that has taken place since the appropriation law was fixed in 1951, because of the prospect of a far greater increase in the years immediately ahead, because of the growing demands of our citizens for new programs of work and expansions of existing programs, and because of the increasing competition for superior teachers and research workers, the Board of Regents can no longer operate satisfactorily the University System and its institutions on the amount of money that it is now receiving from the state.

"In this communication you will find estimates of the additional funds needed if the state wishes to provide for its citizens a system of higher education adequate for their needs and one that is comparable to systems of higher education that now exist in many of our sister states."

The letter noted that the student enrollment has increased from 20,449 in 1951 (when the appropriation was set at $12,233,000 to 25,000 now. An enrollment of 26,000 is expected next year, the letter said.

The Regents also recalled that the system's appropriation was cut 6 per cent July 1, 1953, by executive order, so it spent only $11,499,020. The Regents also said that the system never received any of the $3,000,000 designated for it in the "contingent" section of the appropriation law.

SUMMARY

A summary of the requests for increased appropriations, which are explained in detail in the letter, follows:

For additional faculty and incidental instructional expense, $1,300,000; for essential salary increases, $1,125,000; for new and expanded instructional programs, $359,610; for increases in programs related to work of the system, $152,532; for Agricultural Extension Service, $660,000; for Agricultural Experiment Stations, $626,000; for engineering and industrial research, $486,000; for books and library operations, $165,000; for new buildings, $6,250,000; for deferred maintenance and removal of fire hazards, $1,957,417, and for current maintenance and operation of enlarged physical plant, $454,392.

These increases total $13,535,951. Those added to the $11,499,020 presently received would total $25,034,971.

Bandits Get $350 and Trousers of 9 Victims

Two bandits armed with sawed-off shotguns and one hooded with a flour sack early Thursday robbed a clothing merchant and eight guests of their wallets and trousers in a swift "hit and run" operation, police said.

The merchant, Jack Kapiloff of 5444 Glenridge Dr., NE, told Dets. B. G. Holland and Y. H. Allen eight friends were playing pool in the basement of his home when the bandits suddenly appeared in the doorway. They instructed Kapiloff and his guests to take off their trousers and pile them in a box. As quickly as they had appeared, the bandits disappeared with the box containing the trousers, approximately $350, keys and personal papers of those present, he reported.

Kapiloff told police he managed to dig up trousers for his guests to wear home. In addition to the merchant, the victims included W. H. Garmon of 625 Stanton St., Decatur; Raymond Kiniansky, 1023 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE; H. E. Redwine, 224 Whiteford Ave., NE;

Rev. S. D. Winn, Ex-Missionary In Korea, Dies

The Rev. S. Dwight Winn, 73, missionary in Korea from 1912 to 1950, died Thursday at his home, 211 Avery St., Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dobbins, 166 Barbara Dr., Decatur

Egg Nog Party Is All-Time Favorite for All Ages

Children like eggnog, too. And there are lots of ways to vary the flavor, making it just right for their class parties at Christmas.

Orange eggnog is an all-time favorite and one that all ages will enjoy.

Tree Trim Turns to A Party

By JEANNE HIGGINS

Constitution Food Editor
Tree trimmers are the last to be left out on a limb.

When good friends get together to deck the Christmas tree, the time is right for shining up the old wassail bowl, searching out that favorite recipe for eggnog and declaring the evening an occasion.

Accompaniments? Why not hold to one of our Southern favorites of succulent baked ham to be sliced in tiny slivers and sandwiched between biscuit, split and buttered; a cheese pastry and thinly sliced fruit cake? It's something different from the usual sweet partners teamed with eggnog. Tiny cheese turnovers are good eating along with eggnog serving. Here's the way they're made:

CHEESE TURNOVERS

Add to 2 cups pastry mix, 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, the water to hold together. Mix well, press into a ball. Roll out as for pie crust, about 1/4 inch thick. Cut in biscuit-sized rounds, place a walnut-stuffed date on one half. Fold over. Crimp the edges with a fork. Bake in a quick oven until nicely browned. Good, too, with mincemeat filling.

Crisp butter cookies or fruit cake are just right for the bit of sweet. Just-right nibble to serve warm with eggnog are cheese puffs.

CHEESE PUFFIES

Mix together well 1/2 cup softened butter, 1/2 pound (2 rounded cups) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, dash of cayenne or Tabasco sauce. Work in 1 1/2 cups sifted flour mixed with 1/2 teaspoon baking powder. Shape into a smooth ball, wrap in waxed paper and chill. Taking from the refrigerator about a fourth of the mixture at a time, shape into balls about the size of large marbles, flouring the hands to make rolling easier. Place on ungreased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) about 7 minutes, or until lightly browned. Serve warm. Makes 40 to 48 depending on size. These may be made in advance and kept refrigerated until baking, or stored in the freezer.

The ways of eggnog are numerous, ranging from dairy prepared to the very rich old-fashioned variety made at home like this:

OLD-FASHIONED EGGNOG

6 egg yolks
1/2 cup granulated sugar
rum flavoring
6 egg whites
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
About 2 1/2 cups milk
nutmeg

1. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. 2. Gradually beat in sugar. 3. Add rum flavoring to taste, cover and chill. 4. Just before serving fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, whipped cream and enough milk to thin as desired. (Brandy and rum may be added in these proportions: (1 cup brandy or bourbon and 1/2 cup rum.)

Christmas Candies Heap for Holidays

A candy kiss is Christmas candy at its best. And Santa's sleigh should be filled with a variety of them soon. Visions of sugarplums should begin turning into heaps of fudge, fondant and frivolous sweetmeats.

These fruity kisses are airy meringues full of flavor, crisp and delicate. Here they fill a sleigh made of ginger cookie dough rolled to one-eighth-inch thickness and cut with cardboard forms. Confectioners' sugar frosting holds the parts together and decorates the edges. Cinnamon candies and peppermint sticks add the finishing touch. Prop pieces together until there's time to dry. Granulated sugar makes the drifts of snow.

CANDY KISSES

3 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
1 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nutmeats
1/2 cup quick or old-fashioned, uncooked oats

1. Beat egg whites until frothy. 2. Add vinegar and vanilla. 3. Add sugar, a tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition. 4. Beat until mixture stands in lustrous peaks. 5. Fold in remaining ingredients. 6. Drop from a teaspoon onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in a very slow oven (275 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Remove from cookie sheets; cool. Makes 4 1/2 dozen.

A candy yule log with meringue "flames" decorates the party table before it is sliced and served as a delicious confection.

CANDY YULE LOG

5 cups puffed rice
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup white corn syrup
1/4 cup strong coffee
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 ounces unsweetened chocolate

1. For the log, measure puffed rice into a shallow pan. Heat in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 minutes. 2. Pour puffed rice into a large greased bowl. Combine sugar, syrup, coffee and salt in a saucepan; bring to boil. 3. Add chocolate and continue cooking until a few drops in cold water form a soft ball (234 degrees F.). Add butter; stir until combined. 4. Mixing quickly, gradually pour cooked syrup over the puffed rice. 5. With greased hands shape the mixture to form a log about 12 inches long. Place on a baking sheet to cool.

SANTA COMES A RIDIN' WITH CANDY KISSES
Sleigh is Made of Ginger Cookie Dough

MERINGUE TOPPING

2 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

1. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. 2. Add the sugar a tablespoon at a time, beating after each addition. Add vanilla. 3. Spread the meringue across the top of the log, making peaks to resemble flames. Place in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 10 minutes.

Arranged on a pretty tray, caramel nut - coated marshmallows are an intriguing "little sweet" to offer friends who come to call.

NUTTY MARSHMALLOWS

1/2 lb. packaged caramels
2 tablespoons hot water
16 marshmallows
1 cup finely chopped nuts

1. Place the caramels and water in the top of a double boiler. 2. Heat, stirring frequently until the caramels are melted and the sauce is smooth. 3. Dip each marshmallow, on a skewer, into the hot caramel sauce, turning until well covered. 4. Immediately roll each dipped marshmallow in chopped nuts.

Peas Turn Versatility Into Tasty Dishes

For a new twist in using left-over turkey, try peas and turkey supper sandwiches. Canned peas are combined with onion, mushrooms and cranberry sauce in a delicious topping for sandwiches made of sliced turkey and cornbread.

PEAS AND TURKEY SUPPER SANDWICHES

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped onion
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms

$\frac{1}{4}$ tablespoons all-purpose flour

Milk
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped parsley

1 No. 303 can peas, drained
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt

Dash pepper
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup diced jellied cranberry sauce

Turkey slices
Sliced cornbread

Melt butter or margarine over medium heat. Add onion and saute until tender. Drain mushrooms and reserve liquid. Add mushrooms to onion and con-margarine. Cook, covered, over medium heat until carrots are tender and almost all liquid has evaporated. Add peas and remaining ingredients; heat to serving temperature.

GINGER PEAS

1 tablespoon butter or margarine

1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 No. 303 can peas
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon ground ginger
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon dry mustard
Melt butter or margarine over low heat; add flour, blend and brown lightly. Drain peas and reserve $\frac{1}{2}$ cup pea liquid. Gradually add pea liquid to butter-flour mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add vinegar, brown sugar, salt, ginger and dry mustard; mix well. Add peas and heat to serving temperature.

Plentiful Foods Catering to Christmas

Oranges are prepared to play the usual big part in Christmas stocking filling. Hang a big sock, the crop is large. Eggs aren't stocking material, but they certainly do wonders for the turkey stuffing and giblet gravy. They are one of the plentiful foods for the season.

A Lovely Gift You Bake

CHRISTMAS BELL AND TREE COOKIES

Developed by Betty Crocker of General Mills

RECIPE

Mix well:
1/2 cup Snowdrift
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together, then stir in:
1 1/2 cup sifted Gold Medal Flour
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt

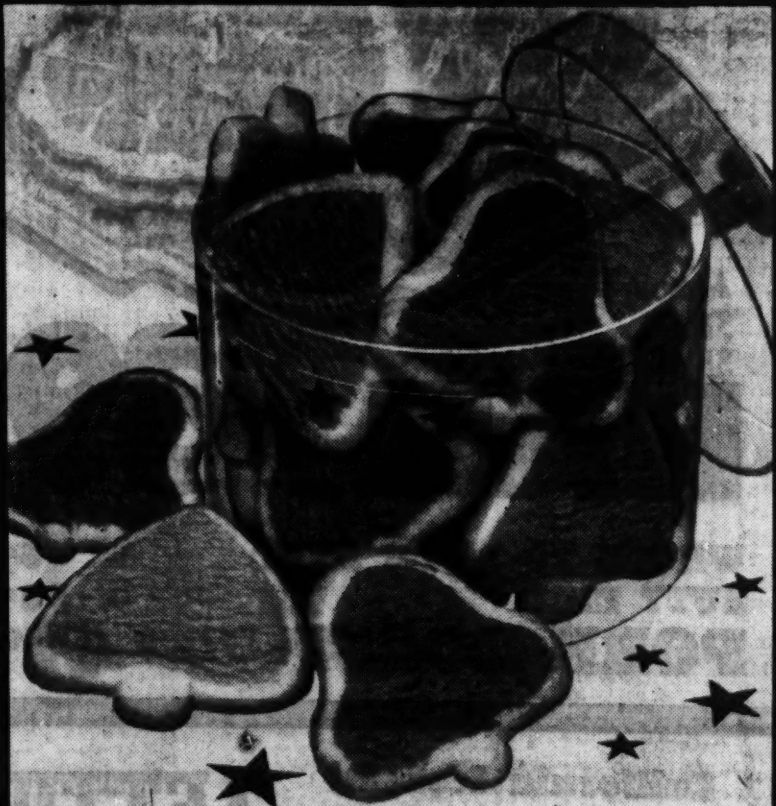

If you use Gold Medal Self-Rising Flour, omit soda and salt.
Color 2 1/2" of dough red or green. Mold this into 1 1/2" x 10" roll and chill. For Bell Shape: squeeze top half together, leaving lower half flared and curving like bell. For Tree Shape: squeeze into triangle. Chill.

Save 1/4 cup of white dough to form bell clappers or tree trunks. Roll out rest of white dough on waxed paper into a 10 x 5" rectangle large enough to cover colored dough. Trim edges. Wrap around colored dough. Chill.

Heat oven to 375° (quick moderate). Slice dough with sharp knife 1/4" thick. Place on ungreased baking sheet, 1/2" apart. Press tiny balls of white dough to bottom of bells to form clappers or to trees to form trunks. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Makes about 5 dozen.

Make these refrigerator cookies days in advance, bake them anytime. Then pack with gay gift wrappings. There's no nicer way to say "Merry Christmas."

Snowdrift is pre-whipped just a little longer than ordinary shortenings, for easier blending. It's just a little lighter than any other shortening, for more digestible foods. And Snowdrift's ingredients are just a little costlier than any other solid shortening. That means better-tasting foods.

Add Heartiness With Special Limas

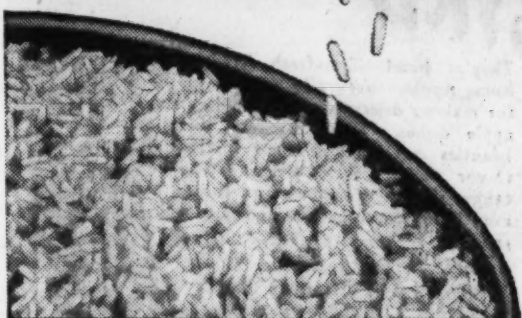

A good way to add heartiness to a menu is to pass a bowl of marinated California large dry limas. Cook the limas as usual and drain. While the beans are still hot, marinate them in a garlic wine vinegar French dressing. Chill several hours before serving toss with a few tablespoons sour cream. Give it a yuletide garnish with accents of chopped pimiento and parsley. Wonderful for buffet suppers.

HOT ROLL MIX FOR SPICY CHRISTMAS TREAT
Raisins and Cinnamon Make Rolls Special

Molly Mixit

Frosted Breads Add Flair To Holiday Breakfasts

Breakfast on Christmas morning can be festive yet simple. For a starter, Molly suggests colorful glasses of tomato juice with a sprig of holly perked into a lemon slice. Sausages, eggs, hot coffee and best of all frosted Christmas wreaths complete the menu.

With a package of hot roll mix, these special little rolls are easy to do. Cinnamon, sugar and plump seedless raisins make them extra delicious. Decorate the table with a miniature Christmas tree encircled with shining angels. This menu makes entertaining easy for a holiday brunch on the Sunday morning that comes between Christmas and New Years.

FROSTED CHRISTMAS WREATHS

1 package hot roll mix
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup seedless raisins
Prepare hot roll mix as directed on package.

Turn dough out onto floured board and roll to rectangle about 12x15 inches. Spread with butter. Sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and raisins. Roll as for jelly roll, to make 15-inch roll. Cut into 1-inch slices and place 3 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Flatten slices with broad spatula. Let stand 1/2 hour. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 18 minutes. If desired, frost while warm with stiff confectioners' frosting. Makes 15 rolls.

Left-over turkey becomes party fare when it's combined with chunks of ripe olives in a simple cheese sauce and rolled up jelly-roll fashion in large buckwheat pancakes. Top with more of the cheese sauce. Garnish with whole ripe olives and broiled sliced cling peach halves. Make the pancakes with mix and allow about 1/4 cup batter for each one.

If you're in a hurry and want some toasted sliced almonds to go along with creamed onions for one of your holiday meals we suggest fixing them this way. Use canned sliced almonds and cook them in hot butter in a skillet until golden brown.

Fruit Surprises for the School Lunch Box

Little surprises in the lunch box are fun for the children to find. Stuff a few plump prunes with candy gum drops, wrap in waxed paper and tuck them into an empty spot.

HAM IS TRADITIONAL FOR CHRISTMAS
Garnish With Spiced Peach Halves for the Holidays

Buy Ham Cooked, Uncooked For Good Holiday Eating

A holiday dinner with a festive look is one which features a beautifully glazed and garnished ham. An easy-to-prepare meat, baked ham is popular with guests and is becoming one of America's favorite meats for Christmas or New Year's.

Select a ready-to-eat (cooked) ham or a cook-before-eating (uncooked) type. Carefully note the label on the ham for information on the type of ham you're buying and the time schedule for baking. If there is no label, as in the case of a half ham, ask your meat man what kind of ham you're buying. (It makes a difference in the cooking time.)

which may be used. Moisten the sugar only slightly; a thin glaze will run off the ham. Occasionally molasses, honey, jelly or marmalade are used as the glaze.

When the ham has finished baking, place it on a large platter and surround it with a colorful holiday garnish of cranberry stars on pineapple rings.

BAKING HAM

Whole ham, cook-before-eating (uncooked) type, 18 minutes per pound; whole ham, ready-to-eat (cooked) type, 10 minutes per pound; half ham, cook-before-eating (uncooked) type, 22 minutes per pound; half ham, ready-to-eat (cooked) type, 14 minutes per pound at 325 degrees F.

Forty-five minutes before the ham has finished baking, score the fat and spread on the glaze. A simple glaze of brown sugar moistened with orange juice or pineapple juice is a favorite. Cider, sweet pickle juice and prune juice are other liquids

Festive Salad For Dinner

A festive salad to serve as a dinner starter is made by arranging alternate slices of rich Calavo slices with winter pear and pink grapefruit. Sprinkle pomegranate seeds over fruits and garnish with salad greens. A sharp French dressing made with equal parts lemon juice and honey completes the salad.

TALL AND HANDSOME
Ambrosia Parfait

Handsome Christmas Parfait

Tall, light and handsome, these Ambrosia Tapioca Parfaits provide a dramatic finish for Christmas dinner. They keep to the delicate side and add no heaviness to an already traditionally rich meal.

Layers of fluffy tapioca pudding and orange segments are garnished with more orange segments and snowy coconut. A dessert that is picture-book pretty and good, it will come as a happy surprise at the end of a holiday dinner.

AMBROSIA TAPIOCA PARFAIT

1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg yolk
2 cups milk
2 or 3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons quick-looking tapioca
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1-3 cup cream, whipped
2 oranges

Shredded coconut
Beat egg white until foamy throughout, add 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, and continue beating with rotary egg beater until mixture will stand in soft peaks. Set aside.

Mix egg yolk with about 1/4 cup of the milk in saucepan. Add 2 or 3 tablespoons sugar, salt, tapioca and remaining milk. Place over medium heat. Cook until mixture comes to a boil, stirring constantly — this takes 5 to 8 minutes.

Pour small amount of hot tapioca mixture gradually on beaten egg white, blending well. Then quickly add the remaining mixture, stirring constantly. (The hotter the tapioca and the faster it is blended in, the thicker and fluffier the pudding will be.) Add vanilla and grated orange rind. Cool for 15 to 20 minutes. Fold in whipped cream. Chill. Peel and section oranges. Sweeten to taste. Place half the orange sections in parfait glasses. Fill glasses with the tapioca cream. Garnish with remaining orange sections and sprinkle with coconut. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

A black and white portrait of Dr. Theodore R. Van Delen, a man with dark hair, wearing a suit and tie, looking slightly to the right.

S. H. writes: Could there be a purely physiological reason for insomnia? I have no worries, health is good, and my bedroom is quiet and has adequate ventilation.

Yes, as some persons do not require as much sleep as others do. The usual eight hours are not needed in such instances.

C. Y. writes: Is hunchback hereditary?

No. The familiar hunchback of 25 or more years ago is becoming scarcer all the time. Credit for the reduction in tuberculosis of the spine (the cause of hunchback) goes to the pasteurization of milk and to the efforts of our dairymen and public health officials to eradicate the infection from cattle. In addition, we have better treatment of this spinal disorder should it occur.

DEROIT (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Stivers told police she awakened at 3:30 a.m. and saw a man rifling her purse in her bedroom. She shared the room with her daughter.

"I was so frightened I was afraid to scream," said Mrs. Stivers. "So I began talking to him."

She said she invited him to the kitchen for a beer. Her daughter called the police. They promptly joined the party.

A Rhyme a Day

"Baby-sitting has become a profession, providing a needed service in many cases where couples cannot afford full-time nurse or maid service."—Domestic column quote.

I do not know of anything... or any form of action... that one may take that helps to bring... a deeper satisfaction... than coming home at night to find... the children strong and healthy... for money's not the only kind... of stuff that makes you wealthy.

They may be ugly as a witch... and clumsy in their movements... and have some other failings which... could stand a few improvements... but if they tear the house apart... their parents do not bother... they always think their kids are smart... as Einstein and his father.

And while you're dreaming up some plan... to care for them tomorrow... and find that it takes all a man... can earn or beg or borrow... and work to shield them from the known... as well as unknown danger... quite suddenly, you find they're grown... and married to some stranger.

You think your work is done?... you're wrong... you have no chance of quitting... for their grandchildren come along... and you start "baby-sitting"... perhaps some day, there will be some "Grandparents' Federation"... or something to protect them from... the second generation.

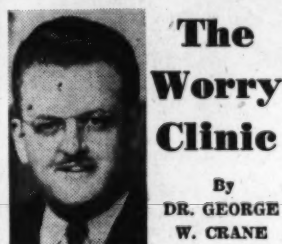

(Note to my grandchildren) — Grandpa is just spoofing. Come on over.

Telephone Users Beg To Pay More

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Subscribers of the Burrows Telephone Co. not only asked the Public Service Commission for increased rates but filed the plea themselves because the company had no money to hire a lawyer. The petition from 196 of the firm's 236 subscribers asked that private line rates be raised from $1.75 to $3.50 a month and party lines from $1.50 to $2.50.

Toot Your Horn But With Caution

Douglas D. is a bachelor friend of mine who was a member of the first class I taught in psychology at Northwestern. He drops in for a visit occasionally.

He has been a college professor himself in several Eastern and Southern universities, but later decided he wished to be a physician, so he finished his medical course.

If there is a stranger in my office when Douglas arrives, he invariably brings the conversation around so that he can say:

"Yes, I remember when I was in the Army in France, and we were hearing the roar of the German guns, etc., etc..."

After he finishes this story he says:

"That reminds me of the time when I was teaching at Pennsylvania, or was it when I was located at Georgia, etc., etc..."

Finally he brings out his third stereotyped cue:

"You know, Doctor, when I was taking physiology in my medical course, the professor said he had read about a few cases of persons who could control the pilot motor fibers in the skin, but he never believed the reports. So I showed him I could make the hairs on my arm stand up whenever I wished..."

I cite this case today to show several fundamental points in social psychology. Douglas and I are good friends, and he will probably read this with a start some day, for I am sure he does not know that I have tabulated his little conversational mannerisms.

In fact, I can almost predict to the second when he is going to begin with each of the above conversational cues. These three topics are simply the means by which he tries to inject into conversation some of his selling points, or bids for distinction.

At the present time, he feels a little embarrassed because he has regressed from the state of a college professor to the level of a recent medical student. His ego is a bit deflated. That is the reason why he hastens to let us know that he is a university professor at this and that college.

He harks back to his Army days, of course, to let us know that he is a member of the American Legion; that he also served abroad during World War II. Being somewhat reduced in his present self-esteem, he tries valiantly to show that he is not just a failure but a successful man with many and varied experiences behind him.

This tendency of Douglas' is normal and very desirable. We should try to put our best foot forward and let our public know that we are competent persons.

I mention it today not in any critical sense, but to show that we must use caution and try to be as versatile as possible in the way we toot our own horn. Douglas has repeated his little three-point opening speech so often that his friends have it memorized.
